Rhodes Announces For U.S. Senate Race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes today announced he is a Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1970.

The announcement came in a four-line typed statement delivered to the statehouse press room.

Rhodes was not in his office at the time.

The statement read: "I shall be a candidate for the United States Senate in 1970, God willing. I will ask the permission of the people of Ohio to continue to work for them in Washington."

The statement was dated Nov. 6 and carried Rhodes' signature.

The announcement came amid reports that the governor would make some announcement before leaving this weekend for a week-long tour of Israel.

The trip to Israel was announced last Labor Day during the national Republican Governors Conference at Colorado Springs.

Rhodes, 59, becomes a major candidate for the seat being vacated by Sen. Stephen M. Young, a Democrat, who recently announced his retirement at the end of the current term.

The governor's announcement came one day after Rhodes issued a strong statement denying allegations of his political career made last spring by Life magazine.

Rhodes is a native of Jackson County and has been the biggest Republican political winner in Ohio as he moved through elective jobs in Columbus and the state.

He started as a Republican precinct committeeman and was elected to the Columbus school board and then became Columbus city auditor.

He served three terms as mayor of Columbus before he was elected state auditor. He had served 10 years until he was elected governor in 1962 and took office in 1963.

He will end his second term as governor next year and by law cannot seek another consecutive term.

Life magazine last May 2 carried an article questioning Rhodes' action in commuting the first-degree murder sentence of one-time Toledo Mafia figure

Thomas "Yonnie" Licavoli to second-degree murder.

The magazine also alleged Rhodes had put campaign funds to personal use and that he had paid some $100,000 in back income taxes and penalties over a 10-year period.

The commutation for Licavoli came just before he got a fourth hearing before the Ohio Parole Board but that board denied him parole and he continues to serve a life term in the Ohio Penitentiary.

Rhodes has strongly denied the other allegations.

His latest statement on the magazine story, released Wednesday declared he has a personal family wealth of about $65,000, including a $1,000 bond and some $24,000 in a state employee retirement fund.

Pentagon Gets Army Units Ready For Protest Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says it has started "precautionary planning" to deal with possible disorders when antiwar groups stage a "march against death" through the capital next week.

It reported a total of 28,000 soldiers and Marines are available in the general Washington area if needed. About 10,000 of these troops are in organized units and many have riot control training.

Unlike the Oct. 15 Vietnam Moratorium, government leaders believe more militants will be involved this time and may attempt confrontations with authorities.

However, demonstration leaders have said repeatedly the protests will be peaceful. Earlier this week protest organizers disavowed any connection with a proposed demonstration by the Youth International Party—Yippies—one of the more radical groups.

The government fears of violence center on a proposed Nov. 15 mass march along Pennsylvania Avenue from the Capitol past the White House to a rally near the Washington Monument.

Negotiations for a parade permit have broken down, mainly over the march route, with Justice Department officials concerned the demonstrators would virtually surround the executive mansion.

This would present a serious security problem, Justice officials say, compounded if their "reliable reports" of potential violence came true.

Regular troops will be brought in only if civilian police and the 2,700-man District of Columbia National Guard are unable to cope with the situation.

The emphasis so far has been on trying to gauge how big the demonstrating crowds may be, who will be involved and where any trouble might break out.

A major concern would be protection of federal buildings, including the White House.

The Pentagon, which is working with the Justice Department, said "no final decisions have been made" on any firm steps to take in advance of the demonstrations.

Basic Army contingency plans for dealing with civil disturbances were developed from experience in recent racial disorders, especially disorders after the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in April 1968.

The doctrine underlying these plans calls for a maximum show of force, with restraint in the use of power.

Meanwhile, the Defense Department has notified congressmen military personnel will not be allowed to take part in or associate themselves with the war protests if their participation will violate the law or established Pentagon policies.

Seale Given Prison Term For Contempt

Judge Declares Mistrial; Other 7 Still Heard

CHICAGO (AP) — Judge Julius J. Hoffman has sentenced Black Panther leader Bobby G. Seale to four years in prison for contempt of court during the trial of eight men on conspiracy charges.

A mistrial was declared in the case of Seale, but the trial of the other seven men accused of conspiring to cross state lines and disrupt the 1968 Democratic National Convention by inciting riots moved into its seventh week.

Judge Hoffman acted Wednesday after a long series of outbursts by Seale which at one point prompted the judge to have the defendant brought in bound and gagged.

7 Rescued From Sloop; Seek Others

BOSTON (AP) — Seven persons were rescued from a sinking sloop off Nantucket early today while Navy and Coast Guard ships plowed rough seas in search of 36 men last reported on the stern section of a tanker that broke in two.

The bow section of the tanker, the 629-foot Keo, of Liberian registry, was found Wednesday night by the British ship Border Laird.

Hope faded for the 36 men as the hours passed. The Keo's captain, in a garbled SOS message at 10:30 a.m. EST Wednesday estimate the stern would not remain afloat more than an hour.

Three Coast Guard cutters and three Navy destroyers searched the area 120 miles southeast of Nantucket Island.

The ships encountered raging seas, whipped by an intense northeaster to 20 to 30 feet. Winds gusted to 70 miles per hour. The Coast Guard said visibility was almost nil.

The Keo carried 210,000 gallons of fuel oil and the Coast Guard said her breakup posed a serious pollution threat. The tanker Thomas M. rescued the seven on the 41-foot sloop Whisp, en route to Bermuda from Marion, Mass. Whisp radioed Wednesday that she was breaking up in the storm in the same area as the Keo.

The Thomas M. reported all seven were safe but that two were "slightly injured."

The Coast Guard said the Keo was owned by Napflon Shipping Corp. of Monrovia, Liberia.

RESPONSE OF THE "SILENTS" — President Nixon sits in the White House in a virtual sea of messages from over the nation — "silent Americans" responding to his gradual withdrawal Vietnam policy. He said he is overwhelmed.

County Makes Application For $750,000 Road Grant

The Pickaway County Regional Planning Board Wednesday approved a resolution to make application for $750,000 available to the city and county to eliminate traffic bottlenecks.

County Commissioners proposed two "bottlenecks" on county roads for the priority list that must be submitted to the state highway department by Nov. 10.

The "bottlenecks" are the Red River Bridge spanning the Scioto River on the Island Road and the overpass on the Circleville - Tarlton Road over the Norfolk and Western Railroad.

Estimated cost of replacing the Red River Bridge, built to replace a wooden structure that was washed out by the 1913 flood, is $725,000. Estimated cost of building a new railroad overpass is $209,000.

THE city had no projects to submit. Mayor Richard Gerhardt and Circleville Planning Commission Chairman W. P. Yamarick, said they were unaware of the purpose of the meeting.

Mayor Gerhardt said he had not been informed of the meeting until he had written a letter to the board of commissioners requesting a conference to discuss "bottleneck" priorities. Yamarick, who is a member of the regional planning board, said he was unaware of the meeting until 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Although Mayor Gerhardt named several projects for consideration within the city, he was unprepared to provide necessary cost estimates.

Commissioner Charles Morris said the projects would be included as an amendment to the priority list at a later date. However, he said that because of the nearness of the Nov. 10 deadline, it would be impossible to delay a request for the funds any longer.

The governmental red tape requires the regional planning commission to present the application for the "bottleneck" funds to the commissioners. The commissioners must then relay the application to the State Highway Department.

The funds are administered by the county commissioners and are distributed over a five year period. Morris said the

Haynsworth Vote Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the Supreme Court probably will be brought up in the Senate the latter part of next week.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said he is hopeful this will be the case, and the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said that's the way it looks to him.

"We very definitely have the votes for confirmation," Eastland told a reporter. However, Mansfield said his talks with senators who have not publicly committed themselves indicate the outcome is a tossup.

An Associated Press tally shows 35 for confirmation and 37 against among senators who have said how they intend to vote on the nomination of the South Carolinian, now chief justice of the 4th U.S. Court of Appeals.

Eastland said, as Mansfield has, that he expects the Senate debate to last only three or four days.

Drug Violations Reported Rising

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The attorney general's office said today "evidence of the harmful influence of statements advocating legalization of marijuana by anthropologist Margaret Mead is showing up in Ohio."

Atty. Gen. Paul W. Brown said two young persons arrested this week for drug violations in northeastern Ohio were carrying newspaper clippings about Dr. Mead's recent testimony before a Congressional Committee in Washington.

Dr. Mead, 67, told the Senate subcommittee marijuana should be legalized and that if she were a young person she might try it herself. The attorney general said Dr. Mead's statements were "irresponsible."

105 Reds Said Slain In Trio Of Assaults

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops stormed a South Vietnamese navy task force headquarters in the Mekong Delta today and blasted their way into two American infantry camps in the central highlands, killing 36 allied troops and wounding 125.

Allied headquarters said 165 North Vietnamese were killed in the three attacks, which dealt allied forces one of their heaviest day's losses this year.

The South Vietnamese suffered the most, losing 25 per cent of the 500 marines and navy men at the amphibious task force headquarters in the Mekong Delta 138 miles southwest of Saigon. A spokesman said 27 South Vietnamese troops were killed and 98 wounded in the night-long attack by 500 North Vietnamese soldiers.

The South Vietnamese defenders said they killed 75 of the enemy, and that 56 enemy bodies were found along the camp's barbed wire perimeter.

Nine Americans were killed and 27 wounded in the two attacks on troops of the 4th Infantry Division in the highlands near the provincial capitals of Pleiku and Kontum. The U.S. Command said the American troops killed 30 North Vietnamese, many of them sappers hurling dynamite bombs into bunkers.

It was the third straight day of heavy fighting after a nine-week lull in the Vietnam war. The increase in enemy assaults are certain to send American casualties soaring upward, a factor which President Nixon said in his Vietnam war speech Monday could slow his timetable for withdrawal of U.S. troops.

This week's totals will be announced next Thursday.

The allied commands reported today that combat casualties slacked off on all sides last week, with 83 Americans, 245 South Vietnamese government troops and 1,879 enemy killed in action.

Inquest Date May Be Set

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP)—District Court Judge James A. Boyle meets today with lawyers of prospective witnesses for the inquest into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne. Court sources expect Boyle to set a date for the inquest.

Boyle called the conference presumably to explain new rules for the inquest, established by a recent ruling of the state Supreme Court.

Miss Kopechne, a Washington secretary, died July 19 when a car driven by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., plunged into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island, off the Massachusetts coast.

The state's high court has ordered that the inquest be closed to the public and press and that witnesses be permitted to have attorneys accompany them. The court refused them the privilege of cross-examination, however.

The inquest is to determine the cause of Miss Kopechne's death. A medical examiner ruled she died of drowning, but no autopsy was performed.

Julia Smith Dies At 99

Mrs. Julia E. Smith, one of Circleville's oldest residents, died 12:45 a.m. Thursday at the age of 99. She was the widow of Edward E. Smith, son of one of Circleville's pioneer businessmen, Edward A. Smith.

She lived her entire married life at 921 S. Court St., the residence built by her father-in-law in 1862 and was a member of St. Joseph's Church which Edward A. Smith was instrumental in founding.

Born March 19, 1870 in Frostburg, Maryland, she was the daughter of Thomas and Mary Ryan Corcoran.

She attended St. Aloysius Academy, New Lexington and St. Marys of the Springs, Columbus.

A DAUGHTER, Mrs. Wilbur Draggett, son, Fred, and infant son, Edward, preceded her in death.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Howard S. Boggs of Kingston; and two sons, Gene T. Smith, Ontario, Calif.; and Robert A. Smith, Route 4.

Services will be 9:30 a.m. Saturday at St. Joseph's Catholic Church with Msgr. George Buchmann officiating. Burial will be in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Mader Funeral Home 4-9 p.m. Friday, where the Rosary will be recited 8 p.m.

Lodge Refuses Rumor Comment

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge refused to comment today on reports he may resign soon.

"I will stand on the statement that was made at the White House," he told newsmen at the U.S. Embassy as he departed for the 41st weekly session of the Vietnam peace talks.

White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler said Wednesday that President Nixon is not considering the replacement of either Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, or of Ambassador Lodge. "No such recommendation has been made to the President," Ziegler said.

Administration Eyes Trailblazing Legislative Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman, the man who emerged from this week's White House staff shuffle as the President's chief domestic affairs adviser, says the administration's 1970 legislative program will shift from reform to trail blazing.

Ehrlichman, named Tuesday as President Nixon's assistant for domestic affairs, said in an interview the 1970 emphasis will be on "plowing new ground" in dealing with the nation's internal ills.

The long-time Nixon associate also indicated the President will submit his new-ideas legislation next year even if Congress doesn't make much headway in acting on the administration's 1969 recommendations.

By Nixon's terms, most 1969 proposals—like those to overhaul the welfare system or turn the Post Office into a public corporation—are reform ideas.

The 44-year-old lawyer from Seattle, who formerly held the title of White House counsel, said quite a few innovations can be initiated even with anti-inflation budget limitations.

At this point no one will say much about specific proposals Nixon will present in his State of the Union message to Congress in January.

In taking over responsibility for coordinating administration approaches to all domestic problems, Ehrlichman becomes the homefront equivalent of Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's assistant for national security affairs.

He clearly ranks as one of the four most important men in the White House—including Nixon. Apart from Kissinger, the other kingpin is H. R. Haldeman, Nixon's chief of staff. Haldeman is the administrator who has most say about what people get Nixon's ear and what pieces of paper come to his attention.

Before Ehrlichman got his new title he already had evolved as the main packager of domestic policy arguments for presentation to the President.

The staff reorganization and shuffling of titles does broaden Ehrlichman's sphere a bit.

Dr. Daniel P. Moynihan, who had headed Nixon's Urban Affairs Council, became a counselor to the President, assigned to "think through the consequences of current trends, to question conventional wisdom, to address fundamentals and to stimulate long-range innovation."

Ehrlichman now becomes overseer of the Urban Affairs Council as well as all other administration efforts and activities in the domestic arena.

Farmers Face Legal Action In U.S. Court

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Injunction suits have been filed against two Union City, Darke County, farmers for alleged violations of child labor laws.

The actions, taken in U.S. District Court by the Department of Labor, named Jesse E. Stockdale and Fred A. Whitesel, both of near Union City.

Stockdale is cited for allegedly employing 11 minors, and Whitesel 8 minors under 16 years of age as tomato pickers during school hours in September.

Violations of the record keeping and interstate commerce shipment provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act were also alleged.

Apollo 12 Trio Explains Exploration Program

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Why are the Apollo 12 astronauts and eight other crews going back to the moon in the next three years?

The main goal is scientific exploration—to unlock secrets of the origin of the moon, and perhaps the earth and the universe. Is it worth the risk?

The three astronauts who will fly Apollo 12—Charles Conrad Jr., Alan L. Bean and Richard

F. Gordon Jr.—agreed in private interviews that it is.

"Apollo 11 proved that man can land on the moon," Conrad said. "Apollo 12 will start the detailed geological exploration of the lunar surface."

"We're starting the series we've been shooting for, and that's to explore the moon," he added. "Apollo 12 is the first one to carry a full-up scientific payload, and our training has been devoted not to the landing so much as it has to this exploration of the moon."

Conrad and Bean, who will do the moonwalking, plan to deploy a sophisticated set of instruments powered by the first atomic generator placed on the moon.

The devices are designed to relay continuous data from the Ocean of Storms for at least a year on such things as moon-quakes, the solar wind and the wind's atmosphere and magnetic field.

The two moonmen also will collect carefully documented rock samples during more than seven hours outside their landing craft.

On later missions, astronauts will explore other points of geological interest, landing in the mountains and inside craters. The last four Apollo teams will have wheeled vehicles to roam several miles from their landing spot.

"Because we accomplished a landing on the moon didn't mean the end of the space program," said Gordon, who will orbit the moon while his companions are on the surface two weeks from now.

"We have a lot to learn about the moon. There will be more

Rhodes Announces For U.S. Senate Race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes today announced he is a Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1970.

The announcement came in a four-line typed statement delivered to the statehouse press room.

Rhodes was not in his office at the time.

The statement read: "I shall be a candidate for the United States Senate in 1970, God willing. I will ask the permission of the people of Ohio to continue to work for them in Washington."

The statement was dated Nov. 6 and carried Rhodes' signature.

The announcement came amid

The magazine also alleged Rhodes had put campaign funds to personal use and that he had paid some $100,000 in back income taxes and penalties over a 10-year period.

The commutation for Licavoli came just before he got a fourth hearing before the Ohio Parole Board but that board denied him parole and he continues to serve a life term in the Ohio Penitentiary.

Rhodes has strongly denied the other allegations.

His latest statement on the magazine story, released Wednesday declared he has a personal family wealth of about $65,000, including a $1,000 bond and some $24,000 in a state employee retirement fund.

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — District Court Judge James A. Boyle meets today with lawyers of prospective witnesses for the inquest into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne. Court sources expect Boyle to set a date for the inquest.

Boyle called the conference presumably to explain new rules for the inquest, established by a recent ruling of the state Supreme Court.

Miss Kopechne, a Washington secretary, died July 19 when a car driven by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., plunged into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island, off the Massachusetts coast.

The state's high court has ordered that the inquest be closed to the public and press and that witnesses be permitted to have attorneys accompany them. The court refused them the privilege of cross-examination, however.

The inquest is to determine the cause of Miss Kopechne's death. A medical examiner ruled she died of drowning, but no autopsy was performed.

Julia Smith Dies At 99

Mrs. Julia E. Smith, one of Circleville's oldest residents, died 12:45 a.m. Thursday at the age of 99. She was the widow of Edward E. Smith, son of one of Circleville's pioneer businessmen, Edward A. Smith.

She lived her entire married life at 921 S. Court St., the residence built by her father-in-law in 1862 and was a member of St. Joseph's Church which Edward A. Smith was instrumental in founding.

Born March 19, 1870 in Frostburg, Maryland, she was the daughter of Thomas and Mary Ryan Corcoran.

She attended St. Aloysius Academy, New Lexington and St. Marys of the Springs, Columbus.

A DAUGHTER, Mrs. Wilbur Draggett, son, Fred, and infant son, Edward, preceded her in death.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Howard S. Boggs of Kingston; and two sons, Gene T. Smith, Ontario, Calif.; and Robert A. Smith, Route 4.

Services will be 9:30 a.m. Saturday at St. Joseph's Catholic Church with Msgr. George Buchmann officiating. Burial will be in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Mader Funeral Home 4-9 p.m. Friday, where the Rosary will be recited 8 p.m.

Lodge Refuses Rumor Comment

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge refused to comment today on reports he may resign soon.

"I will stand on the statement that was made at the White House," he told newsmen at the U.S. Embassy as he departed for the 41st weekly session of the Vietnam peace talks.

White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler said Wednesday that President Nixon is not considering the replacement of either Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, or of Ambassador Lodge. "No such recommendation has been made to the President," Ziegler said.

Administration Eyes Trailblazing Legislative Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman, the man who emerged from this week's White House staff shuffle as the President's chief domestic affairs adviser, says the administration's 1970 legislative program will shift from reform to trail blazing.

Ehrlichman, named Tuesday as President Nixon's assistant for domestic affairs, said in an interview the 1970 emphasis will be on "plowing new ground" in dealing with the nation's internal ills.

The long-time Nixon associate also indicated the President will submit his new-ideas legislation next year even if Congress doesn't make much headway in acting on the administration's 1969 recommendations.

By Nixon's terms, most 1969 proposals—like those to overhaul the welfare system or turn the Post Office into a public corporation—are reform ideas.

The 44-year-old lawyer from Seattle, who formerly held the title of White House counsel, said quite a few innovations can be initiated even with anti-inflation budget limitations.

At this point no one will say much about specific proposals Nixon will present in his State of the Union message to Congress in January.

In taking over responsibility for coordinating administration approaches to all domestic problems, Ehrlichman becomes the homefront equivalent of Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's assistant for national security affairs.

He clearly ranks as one of the four most important men in the White House—including Nixon. Apart from Kissinger, the other kingpin is H. R. Haldeman, Nixon's chief of staff. Haldeman is the administrator who has most say about what people get Nixon's ear and what pieces of paper come to his attention.

Before Ehrlichman got his new title he already had evolved as the main packager of domestic policy arguments for presentation to the President.

The staff reorganization and shuffling of titles does broaden Ehrlichman's sphere a bit.

Dr. Daniel P. Moynihan, who had headed Nixon's Urban Affairs Council, became a counselor to the President, assigned to "think through the consequences of current trends, to question conventional wisdom, to address fundamentals and to stimulate long-range innovation."

Ehrlichman now becomes overseer of the Urban Affairs Council as well as all other administration efforts and activities in the domestic arena.

Farmers Face Legal Action In U.S. Court

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Injunction suits have been filed against two Union City, Darke County, farmers for alleged violations of child labor laws.

The actions, taken in U.S. District Court by the Department of Labor, named Jesse E. Stockdale and Fred A. White, both of near Union City.

Stockdale is cited for allegedly employing 11 minors, and Whiteside 8 minors under 16 years of age as tomato pickers during school hours in September.

Violations of the record keeping and interstate commerce shipment provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act were also alleged.

Apollo 12 Trio Explains Exploration Program

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Why are the Apollo 12 astronauts and eight other crews going back to the moon in the next three years?

The main goal is scientific exploration—to unlock secrets of the origin of the moon, and perhaps the earth and the universe. Is it worth the risk?

The three astronauts who will fly Apollo 12—Charles Conrad Jr., Alan L. Bean and Richard

F. Gordon Jr.—agreed in private interviews that it is.

"Apollo 11 proved that man can land on the moon," Conrad said. "Apollo 12 will start the detailed geological exploration of the lunar surface."

"We're starting the series we've been shooting for, and that's to explore the moon," he added. "Apollo 12 is the first one to carry a full-up scientific payload, and our training has been devoted not to the landing so much as it has to this exploration of the moon."

Conrad and Bean, who will do the moonwalking, plan to deploy a sophisticated set of instruments powered by the first atomic generator placed on the moon.

The devices are designed to relay continuous data from the Ocean of Storms for at least a year on such things as moon-quakes, the solar wind and the wind's atmosphere and magnetic field.

The two moonmen also will collect carefully documented rock samples during more than seven hours outside their landing craft.

On later missions, astronauts will explore other points of geological interest, landing in the mountains and inside craters. The last four Apollo teams will have wheeled vehicles to roam several miles from their landing spot.

"Because we accomplished a landing on the moon didn't mean the end of the space program," said Gordon, who will orbit the moon while his companions are on the surface two weeks from now.

"We have a lot to learn about the moon. There will be more

U.S., Hanoi Trade Barbs At Paris Talks

PARIS (AP) — The United States told Hanoi and the Viet Cong today the U.S. position in Paris will not crumble "because of the words or actions of a vocal minority of the American public."

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge also declared: "You must not rely on our making concession after concession until you get everything you want."

Speaking at the 41st plenary session of the Vietnam peace talks, Lodge said: "We have recognized that your side was capable of blocking all attempts to bring an end to the war through negotiations. President Nixon, therefore, put into effect another plan. This is a plan which will bring the war to an end regardless of what happens on the negotiating front."

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegates denounced the Nixon speech as "continuation and intensification of the U.S. war of aggression."

Lodge said Nixon made it clear that the United States will search for a just peace "through a negotiated settlement if possible, or through continued implementation of our plan for Vietnamization if necessary."

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, chief delegate of the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government, said Nixon's speech "has confessed that he is pursuing a military settlement in South Vietnam and not a negotiated settlement."

She said Nixon attempted "to justify U.S. aggression ... as well as his present erroneous policy."

Mrs. Binh repeated the Viet Cong demand for settlement of the war on its 10-point program, calling for total, rapid, unconditional withdrawal of U.S. and other non-Vietnamese forces and the replacement of the Saigon regime.

Senate Draft Lottery Jam Broken By Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate log jam holding up President Nixon's draft-by-lottery bill appears to have been broken in a compromise that may bring both immediate and future reform of the Selective Service System.

Cigarette Ad Bill Languishes In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill knocking cigarette advertising off the air by Jan. 1, 1971, has gone to the Senate floor, but it may smolder there while other business takes precedence.

Tax reform, a dozen vital appropriations bills and the controversial Supreme Court nomination of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. have first claim on floor action.

And senators who support even tougher restrictions on cigarette advertising may find a delay on the bill will work to their advantage in the long run.

If the legislation languishes too long, the Federal Trade Commission and the Federal Communications Commission have promised to take action on their own to ban such advertising from the printed page as well as from radio and television broadcasts.

The measure banning broadcast cigarette ads by 1971 was approved by the Senate Commerce Committee Wednesday. It takes a tougher approach than does a similar measure passed by the House last summer.

The House bill would toughen the warning required on cigarette packages while prohibiting any further attempt at regulation until 1975.

The tobacco industry won two concessions from the committee, both on 10-9 votes:

—An 18-month restriction on FTC regulation, aimed specifically at barring the agency from trying to have health warnings included in all print ads.

—Inclusion of the word "excessive" in the toughened health warnings. The House bill would require cigarette packages, which now say only that smoking may be hazardous to health, to say that it may "cause lung cancer and other diseases." The Senate committee version would say such diseases can be caused by "excessive cigarette smoking."

Conservation Supervisors Are Elected

The Pickaway Soil and Water Conservation District held its annual election and banquet Wednesday at Westfall High School.

Elected to the board of directors were Frank Graves, Kingston, for a one-year term; Jay Hay, Ashville, and Chaney Vance, Orient, for three year terms.

Speaker at the meeting was Frank Karr. A past district conservationist in Fairfield County, he is now land rights specialist for watershed development at the state level.

Karr talked on the use of planning to improve the environment. Mrs. Ralph Dunkel, with Mrs. Dick Tootle accompanying on the piano, led the group in singing. George Hamrick was toastmaster for the program.

David Bolender, Route 4, chairman of the board of supervisors, welcomed members to the banquet, a steak dinner prepared by the Westfall booster club.

The lottery measure after passing the House last week had faced long Senate delay because of demands for more comprehensive draft reform than the single, one-line change in present law proposed by the President.

Assistant Democratic Leader Edward M. Kennedy, an advocate of widespread Selective Service overhaul, told the Senate late Wednesday he will introduce an amendment allowing the lottery provision to be voted on quickly.

The key feature would move the expiration date of the present Selective Service Act back six months to Jan. 1, 1971, thus clearing the way for full scale reform action next spring.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said last week a draft reform bill open to a multitude of amendments on the floor probably would not be acted on this year because of other pending Senate business.

He and Kennedy were criticized by Republicans for holding up vitally needed reform.

Kennedy gave credit for the compromise proposal to Dr. Kingman Brewster Jr. The president of Yale University said in testimony before a Kennedy subcommittee Wednesday, "I think those in favor of more fundamental reforms should not obstruct this immediate reform."

In a Senate speech announcing his compromise plan, Kennedy said no tall students approve the random-selection plan, which would reduce from seven to one years a young man's vulnerability to the draft.

Kennedy said "The millions of young people in this country, those whose lives are disrupted by the draft, want not another patchwork amendment. They want true reform, and true reform will take both extensive administrative and legislative action."

Morris said the commissioners were not ruling out the city projects but placed the two county projects on the list because planning had been completed on the overpass project and a cost study had been made of the Red River Bridge replacement.

Morris said they had been told the state wants to disburse a part of the funds this year for use on projects already planned. Commissioners Dick Tootle and Wayne Hines were also at the meeting. County Engineer Henry McCrady was present.

The weekly casualty report raised the number of Americans reported killed in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961, to 39,232 and the reported enemy total in that period to 566,501.

The U.S. Command said 724 Americans were wounded last week, increasing the total since Jan. 1, 1961, to 257,509.

The drop in casualty figures last week reflected the nine-week lull in the war, although it ended Saturday with a flareup in the central highlands. Fighting in this and other areas north of Saigon continued through Tuesday and a U.S. military source said the number of Americans killed in action this week—which will be announced next Thursday—may jump back above 100 for the second time in seven weeks.

The group also discussed proposed bypass routes for Route 22 and recommended the south alternate, Yamarick said because of its proximity to the industrial complex and because it was felt a central route would split the city and a north route would curtail future growth in that area.

Harden told the members present it would soon become necessary to revise the structure of the planning commission. He outlined the possibility of joining with the Mid Ohio Planning Commission so that its services would be available to Pickaway County.

Court Studies Mississippi Integration

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court wrestles today with the mechanics of imposing the Supreme Court's order for immediate desegregation on 33 Mississippi school districts.

Summoned to a conference with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals were the superintendents of each of the districts and their lawyers.

The school boards involved were included under the recent decision by the Supreme Court which ordered immediate desegregation—brushing aside a Nixon administration plea for delay.

Though it specified fast action, the high court left it up to the appeals court's discretion to say how and when desegregation would be carried out.

The appeals court asked all sides to submit proposals on what sort of order it should issue.

In its proposal, the Justice Department said school boards should be allowed to draw up their own desegregation plans within the frame of reference set by the Supreme Court.

The department's proposed order made no mention of the desegregation proposals which the appeals court last week ordered the boards to file by Wednesday.

Better Litterbug Plan

Keep America Beautiful, the national anti-litter organization, says "automotive litter bugs are depositing one cubic yard of trash on each mile of roads every month."

Which brings up the question why automobiles do not come equipped with litter bags or other trash receptacles. Many motorists thoughtfully add litter bags on their own. But it is at least an interesting observation that automobiles come equipped with receptacles for cigarette ashes, but nothing else.

Perhaps the custom is a throwback to the days when smoking was not under attack and litterbug was a word yet to be invented. Car makers kept up with changing needs in other parts of their products, but they slipped up on this one.

And it is such a simple oversight to correct. In large quantities, plastic litterbags for hanging under the dash can be purchased for pennies, complete with advertising message. Dealers, as well as manufacturers, could add the bags and create a new source of good will in the process.

Interest Payouts Climb

There may be consumers who are paying out 10 per cent of their budgets for interest on past borrowings, but with the current state of interest rates they must be increasingly unhappy. That is the predicament in which the U.S. Treasury finds itself.

For the first time in many years there is a national administration which is making an effort to keep the federal budget in surplus. Fiscal 1970, the first full year of the new administration, will disclose how much of a surplus it can create.

But it is apparent that several parts of the budget will increase automatically regardless of what the administration does. One is the interest on the national debt.

Should the White House succeed in achieving a respectable surplus for several years in a row, the $18 billion scheduled to be paid in interest this fiscal year will continue to grow.

This is because treasury notes becoming due must be replaced by new issues carrying much higher interest rates than the original. Even when inflation fighting is successful, it takes time for the effects of past misconceptions to wear off.

Triennial Shakeup

Maybe Dr. Ben Lindberg, New York consultant to executive management, was being facetious when he suggested that workers be fired after three years on the job. This, he said, would be a splendid way to shake up the work force and retrain workers.

Only two people might be put at a disadvantage: the worker and the employer.

If Dr. Lindberg had ever suffered the agony of being fired or laid off, he might realize that it is emotionally traumatic to many a worker. And what about pay?

As it now stands, workers get raises commensurate with longevity on the job. Dr. Lindberg seems ready to keep everybody at apprenticeship levels for their entire lives. A gruesome prospect.

For the employer, Dr. Lindberg's proposal would provide a continual supply of untrained and half-trained labor and executive force. Dr. Lindberg was one of the consultants on the Job Corps training program. Perhaps that explains much about what went on in that expensive effort.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNNEIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — While the President earnestly solicits the patience of his war critics and pleads for aid of business and labor groups in holding the line on inflation, he has not listened so closely to a much larger group, the consumer.

The disappointment, as expressed by consumer groups, concerns the President's attitude toward so-called class suits, or action by groups of aggrieved customers against a seller who they felt has abused them.

This is the way Nixon's special assistant for consumer affairs, Mrs. Virginia Knauer, explained her view of class suits in a speech last month to the National Association of Manufacturers.

"When the consumer gets illegally taken in a purchase," she said, "the loss is generally lower than a lawyer's fee. The cost of taking the case to court is often prohibitive."

"We have an answer to that problem—class action. By joining together and sharing attorney and court costs, consumers can bring suit against a firm indulging in deceptive or fraudulent practices and obtain redress of damages in the federal courts."

"My office has drafted legislation to provide for these joint suits, and we hope it will be enacted by Congress."

Mrs. Knauer correctly anticipated that her stand would cause concern among the businessmen to whom her remarks were directed.

"Some businessmen have asked me whether this bill might not generate waves of 'ambulance chaser' type suits which would unnecessarily harass business," she said.

She reminded them: "Federal courts do not accept 'ambulance chaser' cases. The host, ethical manufacturers who produce safe, quality products and honor their guarantees have nothing to fear."

Mrs. Knauer, as subsequent events prove, went too far. In his consumer message last week the President said class action suits would be recommended, but only after the government had first successfully prosecuted offenders.

The limitation, he said, "would prevent harassment of legitimate businessmen by unlimited nuisance lawsuits."

Consumer affairs observers now ask if this means, by inference, that harassment of innocent consumers by the sale to them of faulty products is simply to be condoned without immediate recourse to the courts.

Perhaps unwittingly, the net effect of such a limitation could be to involve the federal government even more deeply in the marketplace as the paternal guardian of the consumer, an ironic result of an attempt to keep the marketplace free.

It might also, the critics say, further delay the frustratingly long attempts by consumers to obtain justice for abuses received in the marketplace by placing an intermediary between them and the courts.

The Nixon attitude may turn out to be justified, for it is possible the courts could be swamped, despite Mrs. Knauer's feeling that the courts know how to handle their own affairs.

Nevertheless, the attitude does seem to indicate that the realization comes very slowly that in America every citizen is a consumer and almost all are producers, but very few are manufacturers.

FCC Approves Permit

Laff-A-Day

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

OLD W. C. FIELDS BUFFS like to recall the moment when the master accidentally encountered his shrewish wife, Alison Skipworth, and after obsequiously doffing his chapeau, rasped, "And what countries have you been ravaging, my sweet?"

The owners of the New York hockey team, the Rangers, are reported to be attempting to force a minor league football aggregation, the Seattle Rangers, to change their name. A Sports Illustrated editor labels this "the most picaresque play since Warner Brothers, producers of a movie called 'Casablanca,' tried to stop the Four Marx Brothers from calling a movie of theirs 'A Night in Casablanca.' Groucho ended that nonsense in a jiffy by demanding that Warner Brothers drop its 'Brothers' because the Marx boys had been 'Brothers' first."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

As an ardent reader of your column I have been aware of the fact that you have not devoted any space to the contraceptive pill and its potential dangers. Can you enlighten us young married women?

Mrs. G. K., Kansas
Dear Mrs. K.: I have not deliberately avoided a discussion of the contraceptive pill. So much has been written about it in newspapers and magazines that many young people are unnecessarily terrified because they are confused by the conflicting reports.

It is obvious that there cannot be a single statement that will apply to all women. The pill is a highly specialized hormone and as such it is prescribed with very special care for each individual patient.

Gynecologists or specialists in the diseases of women, carefully select the patients for whom they may prescribe the drug. There are indications and contra-indications to its use.

There is great value in some instances and danger in others. Unfortunately, some unscrupulous people sell the pill to young women without the specific approval of a doctor. This is hazardous and can only lead to eventual trouble.

The single safe rule is that this drug, as all other potent drugs, should be used only after consultation with one's own doctor.

I, a bronchiectasis (bronchiectasis) the same as emphysema of the lungs? Is it as dangerous and can it be prevented?

Mr. D.D.L., Mississippi
Dear Mr. L.: A group of diseases called as respiratory conditions are affecting the health of many people all over the country. Chronic bronchitis, emphysema and bronchiectasis are included in the chronic conditions that seem to be our penalty for modern civilization.

Bronchiectasis is a widening of the bronchi, the tubes that lead into the lungs. The result is that a large amount of stagnant mucus and pus collects and interferes with normal breathing. The diagnosis is made after X-ray studies and the collection and examination of the sputum. This condition is not the same as emphysema but is closely allied to it.

The combination of cigarette smoke, chronic infection of the nose and sinuses and air pollution are making thousands of people chronic invalids because of these lung disorders.

The ideal health approach is to prevent all chronic lung conditions. When they do occur they must be treated actively and urgently if the individual is to be kept from paying the terrible penalty of chronic ill health.

I cannot resist telling my readers of my reaction to a sight that distressed me. A few days ago the sky was magnificently blue as I saw it from the garden of the United Nations building. Suddenly there was a dense outpouring of thick black smoke that persisted for one hour and fifteen minutes. It was shameful. Yet I was unable to find anyone in the city of New York who could help control this disease-producing pollution.

"Heartburn" deserves a complete examination.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Nov. 6, the 310th day of 1969. There are 55 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1860, Abraham Lincoln was elected president.

On this date: In 1847, the first American missionary church was organized in China.

In 1917, woman suffrage was adopted in New York State. In 1926, Benito Mussolini prohibited all opposition parties in Italy.

In 1928, Herbert Hoover defeated Alfred E. Smith in a presidential election.

In 1956, President Dwight D. Eisenhower was re-elected in a landslide victory over Adlai E. Stevenson. Vice President Richard M. Nixon defeated Sen. Estes Kefauver in the vice presidential race.

In 1962, the U.N. General Assembly called for economic sanctions against South Africa because of its racial policies.

Ten years ago — A subcommittee of the U.N. Security Council reported it had found no clear proof a charge by Laos of aggression by North Vietnam.

Five years ago — Bolivia was being governed by former Vice President Rene Barrientos Ortuño after a military rebellion.

One year ago — Richard M. Nixon won the presidency.

Why Is Fair Offer Unfair

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Provisionally, as it must seem to the 147,000 electrical workers on strike against the General Electric Company, a ruling that GE engaged in unfair bargaining practices way back in 1960 has just been handed down by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The decision does not necessarily indicate that GE is following precisely the same paths in wage-and-hour negotiations today that it followed ten years ago. However, the electrical union leaders are doing their best to make it appear that the policy known as "Boulwarism," named for retired GE Vice President Lemuel R. Boulware, is still providing the 1960 vintage guiding lines for GE bargaining strategy.

There is much mystification over "Boulwarism." The labor leaders who deal with GE would like the public to think that the word carries with it certain arbitrary connotations of rigidity in bargaining practice. It has been described as a "take-it-or-leave-it" approach to negotiating. Actually, Lem Boulware, in the days when he was handling various problems of employee relations for GE, stood for candor, honesty, and open dealing. He wanted a continual give-and-take between management and labor, with explanations available to any questioner at any time. His idea of good "labor practice" was to show the employees how the company had arrived at what it called a "fair firm offer" in contract negotiations. All the elements leading to the "fair firm offer" were to be spread upon the table for inspection: the profit picture, the state of international competition, the truth about inflation, the cost of raising new capital, the growth rates in productivity, the relations between GE and its tens of thousands of suppliers. The "fair firm offer," under "Boulwarism," was supposed to be an honest offer, keyed to what the company felt was the fairest possible division between the claims of the customer, the stockholder, the management, and the employees themselves.

The majority decision of the Circuit Court in the 1960 "unfair practices" case argued that GE, by beginning with a "fair firm offer" which it presented as what it was prepared to pay, had "locked itself in." Not so, says GE: "Boulwarism" in negotiation is always ready to accept "modification and change" if new or overlooked facts can be presented to justify it.

What is interesting to the outsider in this is the damage to our vocabulary — and hence to our processes of thinking — done by the Circuit Court's definition of what constitutes "fairness" in bargaining. If the Court is to be taken at its word, "honest" bargaining must begin with dishonest offers on both sides. Machiavellianism becomes the standard. One side offers half of what it is disposed to settle for. The other side counters by demanding twice what it is really prepared to take. The process becomes a struggle to see who is the more competent liar, or, to put it a bit more politely, the better Oriental rug merchant.

Lem Boulware wanted to get away from all that. He wanted a company that would "level" with its employees. He wanted to deal with labor leaders capable of considered, if not scientific, judgment. If bargaining was always to degenerate into a squabble between a nickel-nursing Jack Benny on the one hand, and a crafty rug merchant on the other, the temptation for government to step in and knock heads together (or to decide in favor of the union for purely political reasons) would become irresistible. We would have compulsory arbitration, which is next door to industrial Fascism.

As Boulware put it in a recent book called "The Truth About Boulwarism," published on a non-profit basis by the Bureau of National Affairs, Inc., in Washington, D. C., bargaining that doesn't center on mature consideration of a "fair firm offer" can reach "absurd" dimensions in duplicity. The union leader, with his "political needs" to consider, may think the "fair firm offer" a good one but "unacceptable" because it is "theirs, not ours." Accordingly he will suggest that "just a little something" be added so that he will look good when he takes the offer back to the rank and file. Boulware recalls a negotiator saying to GE, "You 'don't seem to understand that I can stretch the skin of a goat over a couple of boxcars.'"

In short, if some sort of "Boulwarism" doesn't prevail, management and the union leaders must under most circumstances cooperate to fool the employees. Is that any way to run a railroad? Lemuel Boulware thinks not, and numerous patient citizens would presumably agree with his complaints.

NEW YORK (AP) — Every human heart is an album filled with pictures of yesterday.

Mentally, we turn its pages in the quiet moments of our lives. Our minds break into secret laughter at one memory, and turn blind with instant tears at another.

Time often seems like a never-healing agony, but this album of the past we keep within us does to reconcile us to present pangs.

Your own memory book has some well-thumbed pages if you can look back and remember when—

Dark brown medicines were supposed to be best for you, and usually the taste they left in your mouth was the same color.

Any kid whose mother drove him to school was regarded as a sissy.

Children in a large family quarreled over which would get to eat the prized heels of a loaf of bread. In many families today these onetime delicacies are thrown away unwanted.

High schools generally had boy cheerleaders; the mothers of girl students didn't think it genteel for their daughters to go through such gyrations in public.

When a young lady broke off an engagement, she was sent to visit a distant relative until she was cured of her heartbreak.

Street cleaners wore white uniforms.

You could stay a week at a good hotel for what it now costs you to stay for a day at a hospital.

The two greatest hangouts for loafers were the local pool hall and the county courthouse, the difference being that those in the courthouse got paid.

The only thing that made echoes in a small town after midnight was a howling dog.

You could enjoy the robust smell of burning autumn leaves in your back yard without having a neighbor call up a city official and complain you were polluting the air.

A banker would be scandalized at the effrontery of any man who came in to borrow money merely to take his wife on a vacation.

Guys who wore sideburns and bell-bottom trousers were known as "cake eaters" and thought of by the general populace as juvenile mental lightweights.

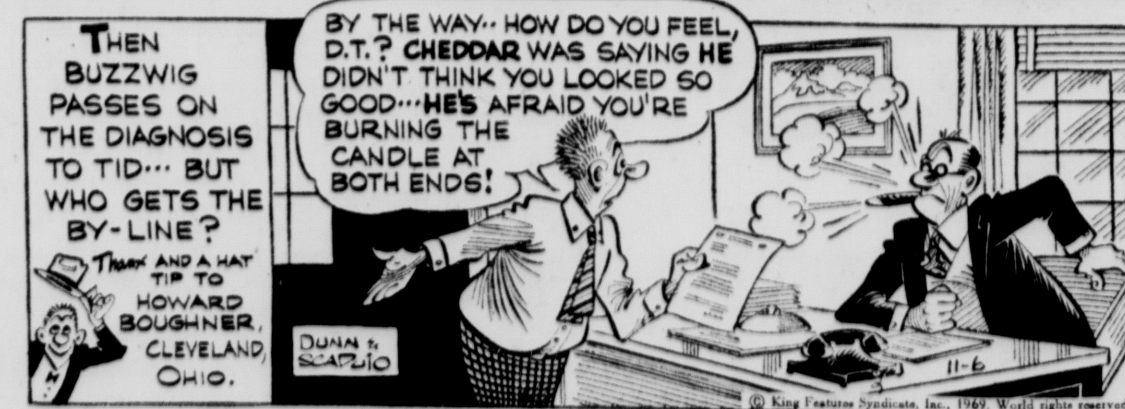

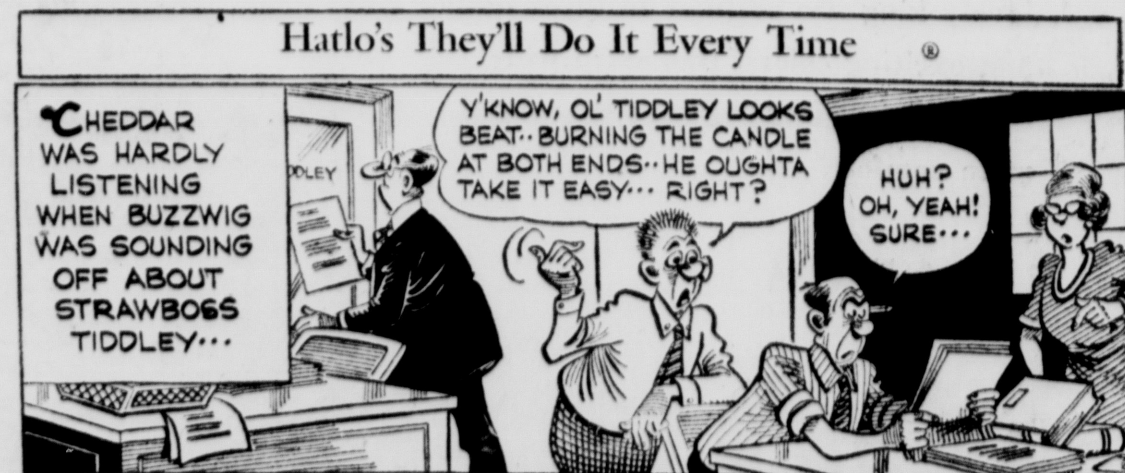

On a drive through the countryside you would see more horses and mules than tractors.

If you liked something, you didn't call it "cool." You said it was a "humdinger."

The average American would still rather run a small business of his own than work for a giant corporation.

More people talked publicly of their faith in God than their belief in astrology.

Better Litterbug Plan

Keep America Beautiful, the national anti-litter organization, says "automotive litter bugs are depositing one cubic yard of trash on each mile of roads every month."

Which brings up the question why automobiles do not come equipped with litter bags or other trash receptacles. Many motorists thoughtfully add litter bags on their own. But it is at least an interesting observation that automobiles come equipped with receptacles for cigarette ashes, but nothing else.

Interest Payouts Climb

There may be consumers who are paying out 10 per cent of their budgets for interest on past borrowings, but with the current state of interest rates they must be increasingly unhappy. That is the predicament in which the U.S. Treasury finds itself.

For the first time in many years there is a national administration which is making an effort to keep the federal budget in surplus. Fiscal 1970, the first full year of the new administration, will disclose how much of a surplus it can create.

But it is apparent that several parts of the budget will increase

Perhaps the custom is a throwback to the days when smoking was not under attack and litterbug was a word yet to be invented. Car makers kept up with changing needs in other parts of their products, but they slipped up on this one.

And it is such a simple oversight to correct. In large quantities, plastic litterbags for hanging under the dash can be purchased for pennies, complete with advertising message. Dealers, as well as manufacturers, could add the bags and create a new source of good will in the process.

automatically regardless of what the administration does. One is the interest on the national debt.

Should the White House succeed in achieving a respectable surplus for several years in a row, the $18 billion scheduled to be paid in interest this fiscal year will continue to grow.

This is because treasury notes becoming due must be replaced by new issues carrying much higher interest rates than the original. Even when inflation fighting is successful, it takes time for the effects of past misconceptions to wear off.

Triennial Shakeup

Maybe Dr. Ben Lindberg, New York consultant to executive management, was being facetious when he suggested that workers be fired after three years on the job. This, he said, would be a splendid way to shake up the work force and retrain workers.

Only two people might be put at a disadvantage: the worker and the employer.

If Dr. Lindberg had ever suffered the agony of being fired or laid off, he might realize that it is emotionally traumatic to many a worker. And what about pay?

As it now stands, workers get raises commensurate with longevity on the job. Dr. Lindberg seems ready to keep everybody at apprenticeship levels for their entire lives. A gruesome prospect.

For the employer, Dr. Lindberg's proposal would provide a continual supply of untrained and half-trained labor and executive force. Dr. Lindberg was one of the consultants on the Job Corps training program. Perhaps that explains much about what went on in that expensive effort.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — While the President earnestly solicits the patience of his war critics and pleads for aid of business and labor groups in holding the line on inflation, he has not listened so closely to a much larger group, the consumer.

The disappointment, as expressed by consumer groups, concerns the President's attitude toward so-called class suits, or action by groups of aggrieved customers against a seller who they felt has abused them.

This is the way Nixon's special assistant for consumer affairs, Mrs. Virginia Knauer, explained her view of class suits in a speech last month to the National Association of Manufacturers.

"When the consumer gets illegally taken in a purchase," she said, "the loss is generally lower than a lawyer's fee. The cost of taking the case to court is often prohibitive."

"We have an answer to that problem—class action. By joining together and sharing attorney and court costs, consumers can bring suit against a firm indulging in deceptive or fraudulent practices and obtain redress of damages in the federal courts."

"My office has drafted legislation to provide for these joint suits, and we hope it will be enacted by Congress."

Mrs. Knauer correctly anticipated that her stand would cause concern among the businessmen to whom her remarks were directed.

"Some businessmen have asked me whether this bill might not generate waves of 'ambulance chaser' type suits which would unnecessarily harass business," she said. She reminded them: "Federal courts do not accept 'ambulance chaser' cases. The host, ethical manufacturers who produce safe, quality products and honor their guarantees have nothing to fear."

Mrs. Knauer, as subsequent events prove, went too far. In his consumer message last week the President said class action suits would be recommended, but only after the government had first successfully prosecuted offenders.

The limitation, he said, "would prevent harassment of legitimate businessmen by unlimited nuisance lawsuits."

Consumer affairs observers now ask if this means, by inference, that harassment of innocent consumers by the sale to them of faulty products is simply to be condoned without immediate recourse to the courts.

Perhaps unwittingly, the net effect of such a limitation could be to involve the federal government even more deeply in the marketplace as the paternal guardian of the consumer, an ironic result of an attempt to keep the marketplace free.

It might also, the critics say, further delay the frustratingly long attempts by consumers to obtain justice for abuses received in the marketplace by placing an intermediary between them and the courts.

The Nixon attitude may turn out to be justified, for it is possible the courts could be swamped, despite Mrs. Knauer's feeling that the courts know how to handle their own affairs.

Nevertheless, the attitude does seem to indicate that the realization comes very slowly that in America every citizen is a consumer and almost all are producers, but very few are manufacturers.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

OLD W. C. FIELDS BUFFS like to recall the moment when the master accidentally encountered his shrewish wife, Alison Skipworth, and after obsequiously doffing his chapeau, rasped, "And what countries have you been ravaging, my sweet?"

The owners of the New York hockey team, the Rangers, are reported to be attempting to force a minor league football aggregation, the Seattle Rangers, to change their name. A Sports Illustrated editor labels this "the most picaresque play since Warner Brothers, producers of a movie called 'Casablanca,' tried to stop the Four Marx Brothers from calling a movie of theirs 'A Night in Casablanca.' Groucho ended that nonsense in a jiffy by demanding that Warner Brothers drop its 'Brothers' because the Marx boys had been 'Brothers' first."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

As an ardent reader of your column I have been aware of the fact that you have not devoted any space to the contraceptive pill and its potential dangers. Can you enlighten us young married women?

Mrs. G. K., Kansas
Dear Mrs. K.: I have not deliberately avoided a discussion of the contraceptive pill. So much has been written about it in newspapers and magazines that many young people are unnecessarily terrified because they are confused by the conflicting reports.

It is obvious that there cannot be a single statement that will apply to all women. The pill is a highly specialized hormone and as such it is prescribed with very special care for each individual patient.

Gynecologists or specialists in the diseases of women, carefully select the patients for whom they may prescribe the drug. There are indications and contra-indications to its use.

There is great value in some instances and danger in others. Unfortunately, some unscrupulous people sell the pill to young women without the specific approval of a doctor. This is hazardous and can only lead to eventual trouble.

The single safe rule is that this drug, as all other potent drugs, should be used only after consultation with one's own doctor.

Is bronchiectasis (bronchiecta-sis) the same as emphysema of the lungs? Is it as dangerous and can it be prevented?

Mr. D.D.L., Mississippi
Dear Mr. L.: A group of diseases called as respiratory conditions are affecting the health of many people all over the country. Chronic bronchitis, emphysema and bronchiectasis are included in the chronic conditions that seem to be our penalty for modern civilization.

Bronchiectasis is a widening of the bronchi, the tubes that lead into the lungs. The result is that a large amount of stagnant mucus and pus collects and interferes with normal breathing. The diagnosis is made after X-ray studies and the collection and examination of the sputum. This condition is not the same as emphysema but is closely allied to it.

The combination of cigarette smoke, chronic infection of the nose and sinuses and air pollution are making thousands of people chronic invalids because of these lung disorders. The ideal health approach is to prevent all chronic lung conditions. When they do occur they must be treated actively and urgently if the individual is to be kept from paying the terrible penalty of chronic ill health.

I cannot resist telling my readers of my reaction to a sight that distressed me. A few days ago the sky was magnificently blue as I saw it from the garden of the United Nations building. Suddenly there was a dense outpouring of thick black smoke that persisted for one hour and fifteen minutes. It was shameful. Yet I was unable to find anyone in the city of New York who could help control this disease-producing pollution.

"Heartburn" deserves a complete examination.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Thursday, Nov. 6, the 310th day of 1969. There are 55 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1860, Abraham Lincoln was elected president.

On this date: In 1847, the first American missionary church was organized in China.

In 1917, woman suffrage was adopted in New York State. In 1926, Benito Mussolini prohibited all opposition parties in Italy.

In 1928, Herbert Hoover defeated Alfred E. Smith in a presidential election.

In 1956, President Dwight D. Eisenhower was re-elected in a landslide victory over Adlai E. Stevenson. Vice President Richard M. Nixon defeated Sen. Estes Kefauver in the vice presidential race.

In 1962, the U.N. General Assembly called for economic sanctions against South Africa because of its racial policies.

Ten years ago — A subcommittee of the U.N. Security Council reported it had found no clear proof a charge by Laos of aggression by North Vietnam.

Five years ago — Bolivia was being governed by former Vice President Rene Barrientos Ortuño after a military rebellion. One year ago — Richard M. Nixon won the presidency.

Why Is Fair Offer Unfair

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Providentially, as it must seem to the 147,000 electrical workers on strike against the General Electric Company, a ruling that GE engaged in unfair bargaining practices way back in 1960 has just been handed down by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The decision does not necessarily indicate that GE is following precisely the same paths in wage-and-hour negotiations today that it followed ten years ago. However, the electrical union leaders are doing their best to make it appear that the policy known as "Boulwarism," named for retired GE Vice President Lemuel R. Boulware, is still providing the 1960 vintage guiding lines for GE bargaining strategy.

There is much mystification over "Boulwarism." The labor leaders who deal with GE would like the public to think that the word carries with it certain arbitrary connotations of rigidity in bargaining practice. It has been described as a "take-it-or-leave-it" approach to negotiating. Actually, Lem Boulware, in the days when he was handling various problems of employee relations for GE, stood for candor, honesty, and open dealing. He wanted a continual give-and-take between management and labor, with explanations available to any questioner at any time. His idea of good "labor practice" was to show the employees how the company had arrived at what it called a "fair firm offer" in contract negotiations. All the elements leading to the "fair firm offer" were to be spread upon the table for inspection: the profit picture, the state of international competition, the truth about inflation, the cost of raising new capital, the growth rates in productivity, the relations between GE and its tens of thousands of suppliers. The "fair firm offer," under "Boulwarism," was supposed to be an honest offer, keyed to what the company felt was the fairest possible division between the claims of the customer, the stockholder, the management, and the employees themselves.

The majority decision of the Circuit Court in the 1960 "unfair practices" case argued that GE, by beginning with a "fair firm offer" which it presented as what it was prepared to pay, had "locked itself in." Not so, says GE: "Boulwarism" in negotiation is always ready to accept "modification and change" if new or overlooked facts can be presented to justify it.

What is interesting to the outsider in all this is the damage to our vocabulary — and hence to our processes of thinking — done by the Circuit Court's definition of what constitutes "fairness" in bargaining. If the Court is to be taken at its word, "honest" bargaining must begin with dishonest offers on both sides. Machiavellianism becomes the standard. One side offers half of what it is disposed to settle for. The other side counters by demanding twice what it is really prepared to take. The process becomes a struggle to see who is the more competent liar, or, to put it a bit more politely, the better Oriental rug merchant.

Lem Boulware wanted to get away from all that. He wanted a company that would "level" with its employees. He wanted to deal with labor leaders capable of considered, if not scientific, judgment. If bargaining was always to degenerate into a squabble between a nickel-nursing Jack Benny on the one hand, and a crafty rug merchant on the other, the temptation for government to step in and knock heads together (or to decide in favor of the union for purely political reasons) would become irresistible. We would have compulsory arbitration, which is next door to industrial Fascism.

As Boulware put it in a recent book called "The Truth About Boulwarism," published on a non-profit basis by the Bureau of National Affairs, Inc., in Washington, D. C., bargaining that doesn't center on mature consideration of a "fair firm offer" can reach "absurd" dimensions in duplicity. Accordingly he will suggest that "just a little something" be added so that he will look good when he takes the offer back to the rank and file. Boulware recalls a negotiator saying to GE, "You 'don't seem to understand that I can stretch the skin of a goat over a couple of boxcars.'"

In short, if some sort of "Boulwarism" doesn't prevail, management and the union leaders must under most circumstances cooperate to fool the employees. Is that any way to run a railroad? Lemuel Boulware thinks not, and numerous patient citizens would presumably agree with his complaints.

The Children's Corner

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Pickaway County Public Library has a section devoted to books for children. Volumes recently added to the Children's Library are reviewed here.

Plans are under way for special exhibits at the library during Book Week, November 17-22. There will be a display of old children's books and toys in the lobby. Also to be seen will be book-week posters of former years. Children will have an opportunity to vote for their favorite story.

"A House So Big" by Joan Lexau. Pictures by Fritz Siebel. Mothers will like the sentiment in this one. What child has not told his mother of the wonderful gifts he will bring her when he is grown? In this book, an exhausted-looking mother sags into an armchair, her shoes kicked off. The ironing board awaits her. Full of pep, a little boy says, "When I grow up, I will build you a house so big." He then continues to describe all the magnificent plans he has for her. Picture book.

Government Nixes March From Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has rejected a permit for a mass march from the Capitol to the White House Nov. 15 to culminate what is being billed as the largest antiwar protest in history.

Only "a small symbolic parade" will be allowed, the Justice Department announced Tuesday night, citing "reliable reports" some demonstrators plan to "foment violence or to stage confrontations."

A department spokesman claimed "coordinated and effective law enforcement would be impossible" if "any serious violence" should erupt along the Pennsylvania Avenue route.

Immediately, the New Mobilization Committee, sponsor of the anti-Vietnam protests planned for Nov. 13-15, denied the charge and accused department officials of negotiating in bad faith.

Meanwhile, some demonstration leaders suggested Tuesday their protest would be swelled by new recruits unhappy with what they termed "the hard line" taken by President Nixon in his Monday night Vietnam policy speech.

They earlier had forecast as many as 500,000 persons would take part in the massive protest.

Two weeks of negotiations between the government and New Mobilization representative broke off Monday because of a stalemate of the planned mass march finale.

"No Home for a Kitten" by Theresa Kalab Smith. Simple dialogue between a lost kitten and various forest animals tell most of this story. At the end, the kitten is adopted by Big Sam, a yellow Persian. Some of Miss Smith's pictures are in black and white; others are softly colored. All will be pleasing to the very young child. Picture book.

"Jake" by Tamara Kitt. Pictures by Burton Turkle. "Jake" is the old story of Epaminandus, dressed up in new characters and rhymes. Large pencil and crayon pictures are very attractive and the dialogue is fast and clever. Jake appears to be a young skunk, but his classy play clothes cover what would be his distinguishing characteristic. So he could be a poodle, or even a bear. Whatever his species, he's adorable.

"A Sky Full of Dragons" by Mildred Wright. Illustrated by Carroll Dolezal. "A Sky Full of Dragons" is as colorful as a New Year's parade in Chinatown. Grandfather took Lee Chow to the park every day. Lee Chow wanted to play marbles with the boys he met there. But he had no marbles. His toys were made of crinkly rice paper. Then Grandfather made a dragon kite for Lee Chow, and solved all his problems. Grades 1-3.

"I am Better Than You" by Robert Lopshire. Lizards Pete and Sam, both arrogant, try to out-do each other in the skill of color changing. Sam wins. There is a subtle moral here. He is smart enough to know his best colors are green and brown. Poor Pete has an awful time when he stretches himself across a comic strip. Grades 1-3.

"The Three Sparrows" by Christian Morgenstern, translated by Max Knight. Pictures by Nonny Hogrogian. Nonny Hogrogian has done a splendid job of illustrating these poems. Unfortunately, they seem to lose their essence in translation. Surely they must read better in their original language. Grades 1-3.

"Sing, Little Mouse" by Aileen Fisher. Illustrated by Symeon Shimin. Aileen Fisher seems literally to crawl inside the skin of a child. All her books convey a sweet suggestion of warm family relationships. In this one, a child is looking for a mouse that sings. He asks his mother, brother, father, and at last in a reference book they read of the white-footed deer mouse. Lovely pictures are soft and sensitive. This would be a fine gift book for children of a wide age range.

NEW YORK (AP) — In the opinions of transit and union officials, and in the crime statistics, the new exact fare system on New York City's buses is what one official calls a "resounding success."

Bus passengers must have a subway token or the exact change for the 20-cent fare. They drop it into a tamper-proof coin box bolted to the floor of the bus. The system started Aug. 31.

3 More Ohioans Killed In Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department reported Wednesday that three more Ohioans have died as a result of hostile action in Vietnam.

They were Army Sgt. Donald G. Sher, son of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Wehr, Rt. 3, Barnesville; Army Spec. 4 Thomas E. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard E. Clark, 511 School St., West Unity and Marine Lance Cpl. Willie J. Kelly, son of Willie B. Kelly, 1276 Fulton Ave., Columbus.

Adult bull moose average over 1,000 pounds, some weighing as much as 1,800 pounds.

Before the new system was instituted there had been 356 hold-ups of bus drivers this year. In

Since Aug. 31, there has been only one holdup of a bus driver, and that occurred on the first day of the new system.

Officials of the AFL-CIO Transport Workers Union, which represents the drivers, say the plan is meeting the overwhelming approval of bus drivers.

The Transit Authority spokesman said that aside from eliminating driver holdups, the exact-fare system has speeded up bus operations.

"From everything we hear from drivers and dispatchers," he said, "it enables the drivers to stay closer to their schedules."

The same official called public cooperation with the new system "astounding."

After a few incidents in the first days under the new system, with an occasional passenger insisting that the driver make change, New Yorkers have adjusted to the plan.

The Transit Authority said that as of last August, 25 other cities required exact transit fares, among them Philadelphia, Hartford Conn., Washington, Baltimore, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Seattle, Oakland, Syracuse, Houston and Buffalo.

The Chicago Transit Authority said it will begin using locked fare boxes in buses on 27 of its lines beginning Nov. 9. Riders will be required to have exact fare in coins or tokens.

Exact Fare Transportation System In New York Success

The Children's Corner

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Pickaway County Public Library has a section devoted to books for children. Volumes recently added to the Children's Library are reviewed here.

Plans are under way for special exhibits at the library during Book Week, November 17-22. There will be a display of old children's books and toys in the lobby. Also to be seen will be book-week posters of former years. Children will have an opportunity to vote for their favorite story.

"A House So Big" by Joan Lexau. Pictures by Fritz Siebel. Mothers will like the sentiment in this one. What child has not told his mother of the wonderful gifts he will bring her when he is grown? In this book, an exhausted-looking mother sags into an armchair, her shoes kicked off. The ironing board awaits her. Full of pep, a little boy says, "When I grow up, I will build you a house so big." He then continues to describe all the magnificent plans he has for her. Picture book.

Government Nixes March From Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has rejected a permit for a mass march from the Capitol to the White House Nov. 15 to culminate what is being billed as the largest antiwar protest in history.

Only "a small symbolic parade" will be allowed, the Justice Department announced Tuesday night, citing "reliable reports" some demonstrators plan to "foment violence or to stage confrontations."

A department spokesman claimed "coordinated and effective law enforcement would be impossible" if "any serious violence" should erupt along the Pennsylvania Avenue route.

Immediately, the New Mobilization Committee, sponsor of the anti-Vietnam protests planned for Nov. 13-15, denied the charge and accused department officials of negotiating in bad faith.

Meanwhile, some demonstration leaders suggested Tuesday their protest would be swelled by new recruits unhappy with what they termed "the hard line" taken by President Nixon in his Monday night Vietnam policy speech.

They earlier had forecast as many as 500,000 persons would take part in the massive protest.

Two weeks of negotiations between the government and New Mobilization representative broke off Monday because of a stalemate of the planned mass march finale.

Protester Is Fined

CHICAGO (AP) — Roberta Smith, 25, Cleveland, convicted of disorderly conduct and obstructing traffic Oct. 11 during a demonstration by the Students for a Democratic Society, was fined $600 Wednesday in Circuit Court.

"No Home for a Kitten" by Theresa Kalab Smith. Simple dialogue between a lost kitten and various forest animals tell most of this story. At the end, the kitten is adopted by Big Sam, a yellow Persian. Some of Miss Smith's pictures are in black and white; others are softly colored. All will be pleasing to the very young child. Picture book.

"Jake" by Tamara Kitt. Pictures by Burton Turkle. "Jake" is the old story of Epaminandus, dressed up in new characters and rhymes. Large pencil and crayon pictures are very attractive and the dialogue is fast and clever. Jake appears to be a young skunk, but his class play clothes cover what would be his distinguishing characteristic. So he could be a poodle, or even a bear. Whatever his species, he's adorable.

"A Sky Full of Dragons" by Mildred Wright. Illustrated by Carroll Dolezal. "A Sky Full of Dragons" is as colorful as a New Year's parade in Chinatown. Grandfather took Lee Chow to the park every day. Lee Chow wanted to play marbles with the boys he met there. But he had no marbles. His toys were made of crinkly rice paper. Then Grandfather made a dragon kite for Lee Chow, and solved all his problems. Grades 1-3.

"I am Better Than You" by Robert Lophshire. Lizards Pete and Sam, both arrogant, try to out-do each other in the skill of color changing. Sam wins. There is a subtle moral here. He is smart enough to know his best colors are green and brown. Poor Pete has an awful time when he stretches himself across a comic strip. Grades 1-3.

"The Three Sparrows" by Christian Morgenstern, translated by Max Knight. Pictures by Nonny Hogrogian. Nonny Hogrogian has done a splendid job of illustrating these poems. Unfortunately, they seem to lose their essence in translation. Surely they must read better in their original language. Grades 1-3.

"Sing, Little Mouse" by Aileen Fisher. Illustrated by Symeon Shimin. Aileen Fisher seems literally to crawl inside the skin of a child. All her books convey a sweet suggestion of warm family relationships. In this one, a child is looking for a mouse that sings. He asks his mother, brother, father, and at last in a reference book they read of the white-footed deer mouse. Lovely pictures are soft and sensitive. This would be a fine gift book for children of a wide age range.

NEW YORK (AP) — In the opinions of transit and union officials, and in the crime statistics, the new exact fare system on New York City's buses is what one official calls a "resounding success."

Bus passengers must have a subway token or the exact change for the 20-cent fare. They drop it into a tamper-proof coin box bolted to the floor of the bus. The system started Aug. 31.

3 More Ohioans Killed In Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department reported Wednesday that three more Ohioans have died as a result of hostile action in Vietnam.

They were Army Sgt. Donald G. Sher, son of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Wehr, Rt. 3, Barnesville; Army Spec. 4 Thomas E. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard E. Clark, 511 School St., West Unity and Marine Lance Cpl. Willie J. Kelly, son of Willie B. Kelly, 1276 Fulton Ave., Columbus.

Adult bull moose average over 1,000 pounds, some weighing as much as 1,800 pounds.

Before the new system was instituted there had been 356 hold-ups of bus drivers this year. In one 12-hour period just before the changeover four drivers were held up. Some drivers were assaulted by the thieves.

Since Aug. 31, there has been only one holdup of a bus driver, and that occurred on the first day of the new system.

Officials of the AFL-CIO Transport Workers Union, which represents the drivers, say the plan is meeting the overwhelming approval of bus drivers.

The Transit Authority spokesman said that aside from eliminating driver holdups, the exact-fare system has speeded up bus operations.

"From everything we hear from drivers and dispatchers," he said, "it enables the drivers to stay closer to their schedules."

The same official called public cooperation with the new system "astounding."

After a few incidents in the first days under the new system, with an occasional passenger insisting that the driver make change, New Yorkers have adjusted to the plan.

The Transit Authority said that as of last August, 25 other cities required exact transit fares, among them Philadelphia, Hartford Conn., Washington, Baltimore, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Seattle, Oakland, Syracuse, Houston and Buffalo.

The Chicago Transit Authority said it will begin using locked fare boxes in buses on 27 of its lines beginning Nov. 9. Riders will be required to have exact fare in coins or tokens.

Miss Shirley A. Southward Bride Of John R. Lake Jr.

MRS. JOHN RICHARD LAKE JR.

St. Joseph's Catholic Church was the setting for the wedding mass 11:30 a.m. Sept. 1 of Miss Shirley Ann Southward and Mr. John Richard Lake Jr., Msgr. George Buchmann performed the double ring ceremony before the altar adorned with pink and white gladioli. Miss Eleanor Snyder, organist, presented nuptial music.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Southward, 486 E. Main St., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Lake Sr., Route 1, Williamsport.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride selected for her wedding day, a formal length gown of peau and Chantilly lace in the A-line design. The empire bodice featured an overlay of lace motifs, scooped neckline and full length sleeves. Lace motifs were scattered over the skirt and Watteau train which extended from the waist to chapel length. Her veil of silk illusion was held by a petal plateau of silk organza and lace with seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of white pompons and pink roses.

Servings as maid of honor was Miss Norma Jean Anderson of Williamsport. She was attired in an empire waist gown of pink dotted Swiss with a long sweeping skirt. Bridesmatron was Mrs. Richard Stevens, and bridesmaids were Miss Brenda Southward, sister of the bride, and Miss Margaret Lake, sister of the groom. They were dressed identically to the maid of honor in pale green, blue and yellow, respectively. Each attendant carried a single long stemmed rose.

Robert Burton of Circleville, performed the duties of best man. Ushers were Rodger Southward of Ashville, Robert Imboden of Chillicothe, brother and brother-in-law of the bride; David Carle, cousin of the groom; James Houser and Scott McFarland.

Mrs. Southward wore for her daughter's wedding a pale blue linen dress trimmed in pearls and navy blue accessories. Mrs. Lake was attired in a beige and gold knit dress with dark brown accessories. Corsages of cymbidium orchids were worn by the mothers.

Special guests at the wedding were the grandmothers of the bride and groom, Mrs. Ella Southward of Williamsport, Mrs. Jacob Carle of Circleville, and Mrs. Teresa Lake of Elmhurst, Ill. Each wore corsages of white carnations.

A reception in the social rooms of the Community United Methodist Church followed the ceremony. A four tiered cake centered the bride's table, decorated with silver candelabra and greenery. Hostesses were Mrs. Robert Imboden, Miss Vicki Southward and Mrs. Rodger Southward, sisters and sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Karen Lake, sister of the groom. Miss Mary Lake presided at the guest register and Miss Betsy Lake distributed packets of rice to the guests.

When the couple left for a wedding trip the bride was dressed in a green knit dress with black patent accessories. The new Mrs. Lake is employed at the First National Bank in the loan department. Mr. Lake is a tool engineer at United States Chemical and attends Franklin University in Columbus.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. John R. Lake Sr., for the wedding party and guests at the Wardell Party Home the evening before the marriage.

The couple resides at 133 Hayward Ave.

Thanksgiving Is Theme Of Mrs. Marion's Class

Mrs. Marion's Class of the United Community Methodist Church met at the home of Mrs. Elmer Yeatts, 507 N. Pickaway St. recently.

Mrs. William Bosworth and Mrs. Oscar Turner were assistant hostesses. The president, Mrs. Milton Griest, welcomed 18 members and one guest. Miss Ruth Stout gave devotions pertaining to the season of Thanksgiving, reading the 100th Psalm. She told of the Pilgrims and their first Thanksgiving and their hardships. She closed by reading "Autumn in Our Blessed Land."

A letter was read asking for Christmas gifts for the State Hospital. Members were to bring gifts to the Christmas Party 6:30 p.m. Dec. 1 at the home of Mrs. Clark McFarland, Route 3. A gift exchange will also be held.

Mrs. Garold Crites reported pecans were here and being sold by the class. Dish cloths are also being sold.

Mrs. Margaret Johnson announced wool and corduroy pieces are needed for comforts by the sewing group of the church. She announced that all circles will help serve the Pythian Sisters dinner.

The Red Cross bloodmobile visit Nov. 13 was announced. The Thanksgiving Eve service of the church will be held on November 23, the church's every member canvass is scheduled. Pledge cards may be sent to the church.

The Woman's Society Christmas Party will be Dec. 3. A carry-in dinner will be served beginning at 5:30 p.m. The Circleville Boys' Choir will be a part of the program.

The hanging of the greens will be held at the church Dec. 7. Mrs. Herbert Southward and Mrs. Forrest Thomerson were appointed to a committee to select a project for the church for the year.

The meeting closed with the president reading a Thanksgiving prayer.

Games were played and prizes were awarded to Miss Stout and Mrs. Edgar McClure. Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

New Laser TV Protection Against Criminals In Dark

By JAMES N. MILLER
Central Press Association
Correspondent

NORWALK, Conn. — A new kind of television camera system, which has its transmitting and receiving equipment in a single unit, uses the white hot beam of a laser, and needs no studio lights or other external illumination, has been tested here. Even in complete darkness, "subjects appear on the TV screen as if in daylight brightness, and picture quality is exceptionally clear," according to its developers, Perkin-Elmer.

Laser light (laser is an acronym for "light amplification by the stimulated emission of radiation") was first demonstrated in 1961. Today lasers have shown practical importance in such widely varying fields as medicine, where quick and painless operations can be performed with their aid; exploration of vast land masses where lasers show great promise for use in aerial searches for methane gas, and in lensless photography, where the mysterious beams are being used to reconstruct three-dimensional images of the original scene.

Because the light emitted from the laser-TV camera comes from a single source, the lighting effects are similar to those of a photo taken with a flash bulb. For this reason the effect of many light sources from different angles cannot be obtained with the new system.

The developers point out that "laser scans from several different points are conceivable, but might prove impractical from the standpoint of cost." Single source illumination, however, may prove completely adequate under the new system for specific uses such as "on the scene" or "spot" TV news reporting.

Lasers of many types have been developed, some with intense power which virtually emit "bullets of light" which have a life of only a fraction of a second. The gas laser used in the new system is of far lower power, but emits its pure light beam continuously.

Under the laser-camera system red light emitted by a helium-neon gas laser is used to scan the subject through a pair of rotating, diamond-faceted mirrors. The fast line sweep of the transmitted laser beam is synchronized with the electron beam of a standard television picture receiver, and laser light energy reflected from the subject is sensed by a self-contained receiver.

"The energy returned from the subject controls the intensity of the electron beam of the TV monitor's picture tube, forming the image. The very low useful energy emission of about one milliwatt from the new unit has proved adequate for imaging objects about 30 feet distant."

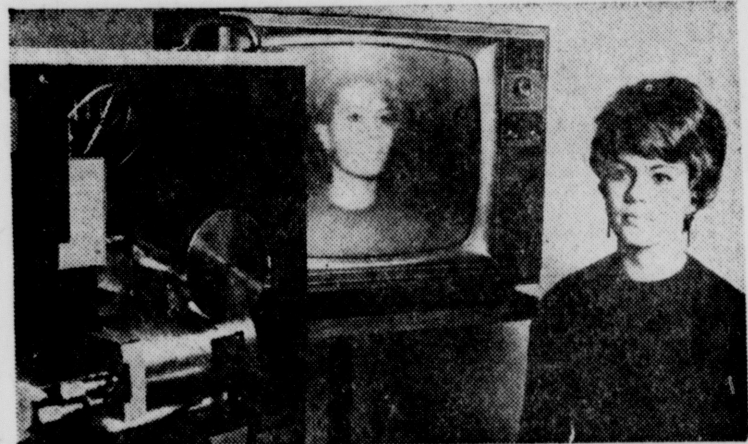

Performance and range capability of all forms of this system "could be tremendously enhanced by utilizing the new argon green-beam lasers, which could provide output powers of several watts. Other laser wave lengths also could be employed. "Versions of this type of system also could have application as a lunar or planetary landing aid for spacecraft. For close-range use the simpler helium-neon lasers are preferred."

Possibly the greatest potential use of laser - TV is for covert surveillance for law enforcement agencies. As used in the new system, for example, the laser beam's fast scan speed and low intensity combine to make it virtually invisible. Thus, dark areas such as doorways could be scanned at night without the knowledge of any lawbreakers. With a properly tailored system it would be possible to observe suspected criminals at distances in excess of a mile.

Another promising area where lasers are just now beginning to be used is in the field of optical signal processing. Oil prospectors are using this technique for reduction and evaluation of earthquake reporting information.

The method has many broad uses in image interpretation as well, though antenna pattern analysis, matched filtering, and signal spectrum analysis. One use is as a means for quickly and automatically locating certain human blood cells for genetic studies.

The new system also looks

The new-type TV camera photographs in bright light (above) and in darkness (lower picture). It's a laser system with many uses including taking radar-like pictures of lawbreakers in pitch darkness.

WSCS Of St. Paul Church Plans Christmas Party

Women's Society of Christian Service of St. Paul United Methodist Church of Washington Twp. met recently in the social rooms of the church for its regular October meeting.

A call to prayer and self-denial, "Let The Earth Bring Forth" was the devotion guide used by Mrs. Oakley Leist of the spiritual life commission. She was assisted by Mrs. Ralph DeLong, Mrs. Frank Lands, Mrs. Robert Dahl, Mrs. Loring Leist, Mrs. Emmett Hinton and Miss Weta Mae Leist. A self-denial offering was received.

During the business meeting members were reminded to bring their Thank-Offering boxes to the next meeting. A letter was read from Miss Nellie Bolender, a member now living at the Haven Hubbard Home at New Carlisle, Ind. Also read was a letter from the Korean orphan supported by the society.

An invitation was read for the society to attend a tea and bazaar at the Tarlton United Methodist Church 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 13. Another invitation was received from Mrs. Frances Huber, Laurelville, for the local WSCS to meet in her home Dec. 30 for a Christmas party when St. Paul silent sisters will be revealed. Mrs. Huber, the wife of a former pastor, is still a member of the Silent Sister Club.

For entertainment Mrs. Cliff Hedges conducted Halloween games. Hostesses, Mrs. Emmett Hinton and Mrs. Marion Beavers served seasonal refreshments in the dining room following the meeting.

Apollo 11 Crew Greeted By Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has told the three Apollo 11 astronauts their just-completed world tour was "the most successful goodwill trip" in this nation's history.

Hundreds were admitted to the White House grounds Wednesday for the President's welcome to Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., who made the first moon landing.

The astronauts and their wives later were White House dinner guests.

Laurelville News

By Mrs. Ray Poling

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Steel of Rt. 1, Kingston, have named their son born Oct. 19, Robert Oakley.

A son, William Russell, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Tatman of Kentucky. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tatman of South Perry and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Notestone of Route 1, Laurelville.

Mr. and Mrs. John Spencer and daughters Darcy and Holly and Ned Karshner were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kent Spencer, Todd and Brad Young of Alton, Ill.

While treating trick or treaters at their door on Wednesday night, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Reynolds were surprised when Sandy, their pet Persian cat, which had disappeared two weeks before dashed into the house. He was tired and somewhat dirty but otherwise none the worse for his absence. The Reynolds family is very happy to have him back and Sandy purrs his contentment as he lays before the fire, knowing he will never tell where he was for two long weeks.

Miss Celesta Hoy visited Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Lester Weaver and her mother, Mrs. Florence Bath of Lancaster and called on Mrs. Hazel Clay also of Lancaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cole of Bedford, Ohio were Friday visitors of Mrs. Ray Poling and also attended the funeral of Mrs. William Hauk. (Mrs. Freida Haynes Thompson).

Kenneth E. Jones entered Berger Hospital Monday for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hart of Adelphi and Mr. and Mrs. Jake Disbennett, spent the weekend in the state of Tennessee.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Miller and two sons of Kokomo, Ind. were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs.

John Norton and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Matthewson and family of Athens were visitors of Mrs. Paul Armstrong on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Chilcote entertained with a dinner at their home Sunday evening to the following guests: Mrs. Esther Reichelderfer, Jane Chilcote, Mr. and Mrs. Don Chilcote and sons, all of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. James Chilcote of Lancaster, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Chilcote of Circleville, Emmanuel Schaal and Miss Margaret Chilcote of Route 1, Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry McCrady of Circleville and Mrs. Paul Armstrong spent Sunday afternoon with her husband Paul Armstrong at University Hospital, Columbus.

Table tennis balls struck by professional players have been clocked at speeds of nearly 100 miles an hour.

Books In Disfavor

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Noddy, Big Ears and other characters made famous by British children's author Enid Blyton have long been in disfavor with Transvaal Province education department librarians because of their "low literary value." Now the library is refusing to accept Blyton books submitted for rebinding and repair by schools in the province.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Modeling Job Upsets Parents

DEAR ABBY: Nancy, our 20-year-old daughter, lives at home, and we trust her. She works as a salesgirl. Nancy recently brought home a 28-year-old man and introduced him as a commercial artist and photographer.

Last weekend Nancy told us that he was to pick her up at 4 a.m. as he wanted an early start to take pictures of her in the sunrise at a mountain site 70 miles away. They returned at 6 p.m. The young photographer spoke about three words to us and left hastily.

Nancy told us during the day she learned that the man was married with two children. I told her we all should have been told this at the start.

When I phoned his residence his wife answered and to my surprise she knew all about the photography trip her husband had taken with our daughter, and was surprised that we were worried just because he was married. Later the young man phoned, obviously upset, and said he'd gone on many such professional trips with young ladies and this is the first time his motives were questioned.

I told him that our unmarried daughter had her reputation to think of, and also that I knew many commercial artists and photographers and never heard of any who operated in that manner. He indignantly said that he would never ask our daughter to pose for him again, and that we were way off base. Nancy agreed with him. We leave it to you, Abby. Were we off base?

OLD HATS
DEAR OLD HATS: Probably, you could have at least waited to see the photographic results of this "trip" before assuming that there was hanky-panky involved. Also, for you to have called his wife shows an appalling lack of confidence in a daughter you "trust."

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a very conservative (money-wise) woman, for which I am grateful, but I think she overdoes it. She keeps records, and now tells me that in the past 10 years we have sent wedding gifts to 37 couples, and we spent an average of $22.10 on each gift. She says that of these 37 couples to whom we sent wedding gifts, only 18 are still married to each other.

She says that from now on she is through buying wedding gifts. Instead, she'll send a lovely card of "congratulations," and if their marriage lasts a year she will send an ANNIVERSARY present! What do you think of this?

EMBARRASSED
DEAR EMBARRASSED: Suggest that she wait five years and send them a silver from her head! (It's the "wooden" anniversary.)

DEAR ABBY: In nearly nine years of marriage, my husband has rarely told me he loves me. Yet I know he does. How do I know? Let me count the ways:

He appreciates my efforts as a wife, mother and homemaker. Although he doesn't tell me so in so many words himself, he brags me up to others. He never corrects me in public. He doesn't drink or gamble or make me jealous by being too attentive to other women in my presence. When I'm wrong, he doesn't remind me of it over and over again. When he's wrong, he says "I'm sorry." He never says MY house or MY children—always OURS.

I could go on and on. So what if he finds it difficult to put into words what he feels? There are many men to whom words come easily but they are only "words."

My man has trouble articulating what he feels, but he expresses his feelings more eloquently by what he does.

If women would stop nagging their husbands by asking, "Do you love me?" and pay attention to how their men TREAT them, they wouldn't have to ask. They would KNOW.

Sincerely,
LOVED IN LOUISVILLE
CONFIDENTIAL TO "FROM RAGS TO RICHES" in L.A.: Do your givin' while you're livin'. Then you'll be knowin' where it's goin'.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

South Viets Suffer Heavy Losses In Battle

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese suffered their heaviest losses in four months Tuesday in a 10-hour battle in the southwest corner of the central highlands. But the government troops reported three times as many North Vietnamese killed with the help of American dive-bombers and artillery.

Reports from the field said 24 South Vietnamese soldiers and 80 North Vietnamese were killed in the fighting six to eight miles southwest of the Duc Lap Special Forces camp. Another 38 South Vietnamese were wounded, and several were reported missing.

A government ranger battalion of about 400 men made the first contact with a strong enemy force in the frontier area about 115 miles northeast of Saigon. Two infantry battalions and an armored battalion were rushed up until about 1,500 government troops were fighting in the rolling hills overgrown with long grass.

The North Vietnamese were from the same three regiments that fought South Vietnamese troops last May and June around the Ben Het Special Forces camp and in the Dak To valley in the northern part of the central highlands.

The only American participation in that campaign was in the form of air and artillery support, and the U.S. Command viewed the fighting as a test of the American plan to gradually turn over the major burden of the fighting to the South Vietnamese.

Since June, the three enemy regiments moved south along the Cambodian border into the southern highlands to apply pressure on Duc Lap and the Bu Prang Special Forces camp 25 miles south of Duc Lap. Troops from these regiments forced U.S. and South Vietnamese forces to abandon three artillery bases around Bu Prang last weekend.

Elsewhere, half a dozen enemy sappers slipped into Quang Ngai, a provincial capital 80 miles southeast of Da Nang, before dawn Tuesday and threw grenades into a Roman Catholic church, a secondary school and seven houses. A government spokesman said he had no reports of any casualties, although one house was destroyed, and most of the other buildings were badly damaged. The sappers escaped.

Sources in Bangkok reported today that about 500 U.S. Air Force personnel were pulled out of Thailand last month. They were from the 41st Tactical Electronic Warfare Squadron and the 556th Civil Engineering Squadron, both of which have been deactivated.

Thailand and the United States announced an agreement five weeks ago for withdrawal of 6,000 of the 49,000 U.S. troops in Thailand.

Dear Abby: Modeling Job Upsets Parents

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Nancy, our 20-year-old daughter, lives at home, and we trust her. She works as a salesgirl. Nancy recently brought home a 28-year-old man and introduced him as a commercial artist and photographer.

Last weekend Nancy told us that he was to pick her up at 4 a.m. as he wanted an early start to take pictures of her in the sunrise at a mountain site 70 miles away. They returned at 6 p.m. The young photographer spoke about three words to us and left hastily.

Nancy told us during the day she learned that the man was married with two children. I told her we all should have been told this at the start.

When I phoned his residence his wife answered and to my surprise she knew all about the photography trip her husband had taken with our daughter, and was surprised that we were worried just because he was married. Later the young man phoned, obviously upset, and said he'd gone on many such professional trips with young ladies and this is the first time his motives were questioned.

I told him that our unmarried daughter had her reputation to think of, and also that I knew many commercial artists and photographers and never heard of any who operated in that manner. He indignantly said that he would never ask our daughter to pose for him again, and that we were way off base. Nancy agreed with him. We leave it to you, Abby. Were we off base?

OLD HATS
DEAR OLD HATS: Probably, you could have at least waited to see the photographic results of this "trip" before assuming that there was hanky-panky involved. Also, for you to have called his wife shows an appalling lack of confidence in a daughter you "trust."

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a very conservative (money-wise) woman, for which I am grateful, but I think she overdoes it. She keeps records, and now tells me that in the past 10 years we have sent wedding gifts to 37 couples, and we spent an average of $22.10 on each gift. She says that of these 37 couples to whom we sent wedding gifts, only 18 are still married to each other.

She says that from now on she is through buying wedding gifts. Instead, she'll send a lovely card of "congratulations," and if their marriage lasts a year she will send an ANNIVERSARY present! What do you think of this?

EMBARRASSED
DEAR EMBARRASSED: Suggest that she wait five years and send them a silver from her head! (It's the "wooden" anniversary.)

DEAR ABBY: In nearly nine years of marriage, my husband has rarely told me he loves me. Yet I know he does. How do I know? Let me count the ways:

He appreciates my efforts as a wife, mother and homemaker. Although he doesn't tell me so in so many words himself, he brags me up to others. He never corrects me in public. He doesn't drink or gamble or make me jealous by being too attentive to other women in my presence. When I'm wrong, he doesn't remind me of it over and over again. When he's wrong, he says "I'm sorry." He never says MY house or MY children—always OURS.

I could go on and on. So what if he finds it difficult to put into words what he feels? There are many men to whom words come easily but they are only "words."

My man has trouble articulating what he feels, but he expresses his feelings more eloquently by what he does.

If women would stop nagging their husbands by asking, "Do you love me?" and pay attention to how their men TREAT them, they wouldn't have to ask. They would KNOW.

Sincerely,
LOVED IN LOUISVILLE
CONFIDENTIAL TO "FROM RAGS TO RICHES" IN L.A.: Do your givin' while you're livin'. Then you'll be knowin' where it's goin'.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A government spokesman said he had no reports of any casualties, although one house was destroyed, and most of the other buildings were badly damaged. The sappers escaped.

U.S. and South Vietnamese communiques reported only scattered fights overnight and 22 enemy rocket and mortar attacks with nine of them causing casualties or damage. No Americans were killed in the shelling. U.S. headquarters said, but eight were wounded.

Before dawn today, U.S. infantrymen from the 25th Division trapped North Vietnamese troops apparently trying to move into an attack position near the district capital of Trang Bang, 28 miles northwest of Saigon. The infantrymen and helicopter gunships killed 26 of the enemy, and there were no American casualties, headquarters said.

The U.S. Command went ahead with plans to withdraw 35,000 American troops by Dec. 15, announcing that 2,500 men of the 3rd Marine Division will leave for Okinawa over the weekend. That will leave only one battalion and small support units of the 18,000-man division in Vietnam, and they will leave in the next few weeks.

American troop strength in Vietnam now is 495,200 men, and the current goal is to reduce it to about 480,000 by Dec. 15.

Boeing 747 A Problem For U.S. Airports

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 747, Boeing's biggest bird, makes its airline debut next year. But airport officials fear they cannot provide nests large enough to handle the luxury jetliner.

"They will produce instant traffic peaks on the ground, more passengers, more cargo, more visitors, more terminal public use and parking facility needs, more clogged access roads and no less aircraft noise," says one worried official.

The 747—capable of carrying between 300 and 500 passengers and twice the cargo of the now popular 707—will be first put into commercial service by Pan American World Airways.

Pan Am's chairman, Harold E. Gray, sees less of a problem. "Any terminal that today can handle two 707 aircraft or DC8 aircraft within the same time span—say about 15 minutes—can equally well handle a 747," he said.

But Warren H. Hawes, director of economic services for Airport Operators Council International, Inc., the non-profit trade association of governmental bodies owning or operating major airports throughout the world, disagrees.

"The immediate problem is that the 747 will be in service before the airports are ready for it," he said.

"We are building, at the airports, as fast as we can, but there are many tremendous problems. The biggest problem of all is people—handling them, ticketing them, feeding them, getting them to and from the airport."

Pan Am paid a half-billion dollars for 25 747s in 1966 and later increased the order to 33 planes, costing a total of $765 million.

Thus Pan Am had a large say in shaping of the 747. Its first planes will carry 58 persons in a forward first class compartment, and 304 in economy class. The jetliner will include a lounge on an upper deck, reached by spiral staircase from the main deck, and a bar.

The four-man flight crew is housed forward of the lounge, 29 feet above the ground. The

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed bids will be received by the Department of Public Service, City Hall, Circleville, Ohio until twelve (12:00) noon on November 14th, 1969, for the following:

Labor and material to replace main doors at the Fire Department and other work necessary to prepare project.

Contractor shall be required to provide a certified check on some solvent bank drawn and made payable to the City of Circleville, as a guarantee that if any bid is accepted a contract will be entered into and its performance secured in the proper manner. Said check shall be ten (10 per cent) of the total amount of contract.

Should any bid be rejected such check will be returned to the bidder and should any bid be accepted such check will be returned to the bidder upon proper execution and securing of the contract.

The successful bidder if any will be required to execute the contract within ten (10) days after the award of the same and in case of failure to execute the contract, and the check accompanying the bid shall be forfeited to the City.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

plane's tail is taller than the average six-story building.

The 747 has 10 doors, six galleys and 12 lavatories, and will carry 14 stewardesses.

In preparation for the super-jets, the airline industry is investing hundreds of millions of dollars in new computerized reservations systems and automated ticket facilities, and is working toward an automated baggage delivery system.

Other big buyers of the 747 include United Air Lines, with 18 of the $20 million airplanes on order, and Trans World Airlines, with 15 747s on order.

Altogether, 27 airlines have placed orders with Boeing for 183 planes.

The International Civil Aviation Organization, a United Nations agency, estimates 747s will be operating at 106 airports by the end of 1973, and at 47 of them by next year.

The International Air Transport Association has estimated that only 33 airports will be equipped to its recommended standards by the end of 1970, however.

What of the plane's safety? Former Transportation Secretary Alan S. Boyd said two years ago, "We cannot afford to lose a single one of these aircraft." And John G. Adams, a member of the Civil Aeronautics Board has said that just as the Comet jet airliner failures in the early 1950s dealt the British aircraft industry a blow from which it never fully recovered, public confidence could desert the 747 for a decade with even a single disaster.

But Pan Am's Gray contends the bigger the airplanes, the safer they are.

"We are very, very confident that the 747 is going to represent another step forward in the area of safety."

Boeing 747 A Problem For U.S. Airports

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 747, Boeing's biggest bird, makes its airline debut next year. But airport officials fear they cannot provide nests large enough to handle the luxury jetliner.

"They will produce instant traffic peaks on the ground, more passengers, more cargo, more visitors, more terminal public use and parking facility needs, more clogged access roads and no less aircraft noise," says one worried official.

The 747—capable of carrying between 300 and 500 passengers and twice the cargo of the now popular 707—will be first put into commercial service by Pan American World Airways.

Pan Am's chairman, Harold E. Gray, sees less of a problem. "Any terminal that today can handle two 707 aircraft or DC8 aircraft within the same time span—say about 15 minutes—can equally well handle a 747," he said.

But Warren H. Hawes, director of economic services for Airport Operators Council International, Inc., the non-profit trade association of governmental bodies owning or operating major airports throughout the world, disagrees.

"The immediate problem is that the 747 will be in service before the airports are ready for it," he said.

"We are building, at the airports, as fast as we can, but there are many tremendous problems. The biggest problem of all is people—handling them, ticketing them, feeding them, getting them to and from the airport."

Pan Am paid a half-billion dollars for 25 747s in 1966 and later increased the order to 33 planes, costing a total of $765 million.

Thus Pan Am had a large say in shaping of the 747. Its first planes will carry 58 persons in a forward first class compartment, and 304 in economy class. The jetliner will include a lounge on an upper deck, reached by spiral staircase from the main deck, and a bar. The four-man flight crew is housed forward of the lounge, 29 feet above the ground. The plane's tail is taller than the average six-story building.

The 747 has 10 doors, six galleys and 12 lavatories, and will carry 14 stewardesses. In preparation for the super-jets, the airline industry is investing hundreds of millions of dollars in new computerized reservations systems and automated ticket facilities, and is working toward an automated baggage delivery system.

Other big buyers of the 747 include United Air Lines, with 18 of the $20 million airplanes on order, and Trans World Airlines, with 15 747s on order.

Altogether, 27 airlines have placed orders with Boeing for 183 planes.

The International Civil Aviation Organization, a United Nations agency, estimates 747s will be operating at 106 airports by the end of 1973, and at 47 of them by next year.

The International Air Transport Association has estimated that only 33 airports will be equipped to its recommended standards by the end of 1970, however.

What of the plane's safety? Former Transportation Secretary Alan S. Boyd said two years ago, "We cannot afford to lose a single one of these aircraft."

And John G. Adams, a member of the Civil Aeronautics Board has said that just as the Comet jet airliner failures in the early 1950s dealt the British aircraft industry a blow from which it never fully recovered, public confidence could desert the 747 for a decade with even a single disaster.

But Pan Am's Gray contends the bigger the airplanes, the safer they are.

"We are very, very confident that the 747 is going to represent another step forward in the area of safety."

Morganna's Not Up-Tight About Physical Attributes

By TED SIMMONS
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Morganna Roberts has a 44-inch bust but she's not up-tight about it.

In fact, she cherishes it all the way to the bank.

"That's what makes the difference in the salaries," said Morganna, 22-year-old stripper at an Atlanta night club. "Those smaller girls are only making $200 or $300 a week."

The club manager says he pays Morganna $1,000 a week.

Morganna's remarks were prompted by a story from Honolulu about a stripper named Alexandra the Great. Alexandra is 48 inches around the chest and is unhappy because people stare at her when she is off work.

Brown Supports Effort To Push Voting Age Cut

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Atty. Gen. Paul Brown offered this advice Wednesday to young people who want to see Ohio's voting age reduced to 19.

"Use your collective influence to help rid our colleges and our communities of those who disrupt and abuse."

"Brown said defeat of the issue in Tuesday's election can be attributed at least partially to the conduct of a vocal minority of young people who are associated with drug abuse, campus unrest and a general disregard for the law."

"The majority of young persons are responsible and deserve the right to participate in our government," Brown said. "It is unfortunate that the actions of a few reflect so adversely."

NEW YORK (AP) — Teen-agers in general think cigarettes are dangerous, but social pressures push four out of 10 into smoking them, a new study finds.

The teen years are crucial in the decision whether to smoke, the survey says. The greatest influence toward smoking is their friends, but many youngsters might choose not to smoke if parents, teachers, doctors and other adults set better examples, it adds.

The national survey of 1,562 teen-agers found that 65 per cent of smokers and 86 per cent of nonsmokers believe cigarette's cause lung cancer.

About half the smokers and 70 per cent of nonsmokers think it is "definitely or probably true" that cigarette smoking triples the risk of premature heart attack.

Young smokers said they did so because it "makes you feel like a big shot... makes you look older... makes you feel like one of the crowd," or that smoking relaxed them when they felt nervous, or helped when they were bored or depressed. Far more boys than girls thought smoking made them more attractive sexually.

The study conducted by Lieberman Research, Inc., last March and April was sponsored by the American Cancer Society with the findings released today at the society's annual meeting.

Each teen-ager was interviewed for about an hour. One third were 13 or 14 years old, another third 15 or 16, the rest 17 or 18.

Teen-agers are 50 per cent more likely to smoke if the adults, parents, teachers and others with whom they come in contact are smokers, but are almost 100 per cent more likely to smoke if their friends, brothers and sisters smoke, the study finds.

The youngsters are very

Teens Blame Smoking On Social Pressures

much aware of cigarette commercials, and the antismoking messages being broadcast or printed, but see far more of the commercials for cigarettes, the survey says.

Another finding is that a teen-ager is less apt to smoke if he has good rapport with his parents and they smoke, than if his parents don't smoke but he had bad rapport with them.

Teen-age smokers "are more adventurous, more experimental, more anxiety-ridden and more prone to reject the values of the Establishment. Smokers more than nonsmokers describe themselves as nervous, frustrated, depressed, rebellious, reckless, sexy, swingers, liking to live dangerously, living for the moment, and wanting to try new things."

Nonsmokers, the study says, "are happier, more sensible, more success oriented, more self-confident and more inclined to accept the values of the Establishment. Non smokers more than smokers describe themselves as happy, relaxed, clean-cut, cautious, ambitious, hard-working, intelligent and successful."

Local Physician Re-Elected As AAGP Member

Dr. Jasper M. Hedges, 610 Northridge Road has been re-elected to active membership in the American Academy of General Practice, the national association of family doctors.

Re-election signifies that the physician has successfully completed 150 hours of accredited postgraduate medical study in the last three years. Members become eligible for re-election at the end of the third year following their election to membership. The Academy, the country's second largest national medical association, is the only national medical group that requires members to keep up with medical progress through continuing education.

The Academy, founded in 1947 and headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., has been instrumental in the establishment of a new primary medical specialty in family practice. The new specialty is expected to increase the numbers of family physicians available to serve the public in the future. The Academy's postgraduate education program is the foundation of eligibility for family doctors now in practice who apply for certification in the new specialty.

Nova Scotian Abraham Cesner invented the word "kerosene" for his discovery of coal oil.

A thank you note was read from Jill Reese for the planter which she received while in the hospital.

The Past Chancellors banquet will be served by the Sisters on Dec. 10. A joint installation of officers with the Knights will be held in January.

It was announced that a member, Evelyn Bastian, is a surgical patient in Riverside Hospital.

Those being honored will be members of the varsity, reserve, freshmen football squads, cheerleaders for each team and members of the cross country team, coaches and advisors.

Each and every parent is urged to attend the affair which will be honoring their son or daughter. Each family is asked to bring a well filled basket that includes a meat dish and table service. The table service will be furnished for the honored guests only. Rolls and beverage will be furnished by the Athletic Booster Club which is sponsoring the event.

A dance will follow the dinner and program. Admission to the dance is limited to high school age or over unless younger children have attended the banquet accompanied by their parents.

Eight members and two advisers of the Youth Fellowship of the Zion United Methodist Church attended a Youth Rally at the Emanuel United Methodist Church in Circleville at 2 p.m. Nov. 2.

Election of officers was held and a movie entitled "Your Last Chance" was shown. Refreshments were served.

Hanoi To Boost Infiltration Rate?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key U.S. officials expect North Vietnam to increase its troop infiltration into South Vietnam in the near future after almost six months of decline.

Such action could pose a threat to President Nixon's timetable for withdrawing American ground combat forces from Vietnam, and authorities here are watching developments closely now that the weather is improving along infiltration routes.

According to some reports reaching Washington, the buildup already has started. But the situation is not yet clear as information on North Vietnamese troop flow along such jungle routes as the Ho Chi Minh trail linking North and South Vietnam through Laos is slow to come in.

Based on present prospects, however, some authorities believe Hanoi will not only substantially strengthen its forces in the South by early next year but will launch an offensive to put new pressures for concessions on President Nixon.

If the enemy does not significantly raise infiltration and the level of combat in this period, these experts say, it could mean either Hanoi's ability to escalate the war is limited or that it was sticking to a policy of gradual de-escalation—or both.

Such a development would fit in with Nixon's program of U.S. de-escalation and withdrawal. In any event, the next three to five months evidently will be a critical period for judging enemy action in the light of Nixon's policy speech Monday. He made clear then a key factor in keeping to his secret timetable for troop withdrawals is what the enemy does.

North Vietnamese infiltration into the South has been influenced by seasonal factors.

Monsoon rains normally have slowed troop movement along the trails through Laos from late spring until November.

Then for about six months better weather has allowed massive reinforcements to go South.

Officials say some seasonal increase would be normal now and in coming months, but the question is how much of an effort Hanoi will make and for what purpose.

Nixon reported in his speech that "enemy infiltration over the last three months is less than 20 per cent of what it was over the similar period last year."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers said a month ago that as a result of the infiltration decline—which began last spring—total North Vietnamese strength in South Vietnam had dropped by about 30,000 men.

If the North Vietnamese take advantage of their seasonal opportunity for mass reinforcements it would indicate to U.S. officials Hanoi is preparing for offensives on a scale beyond the "high points" of fighting typical of enemy operations this year.

The present U.S. concept of Hanoi's war policy is that it is geared to a "long haul, low cost" strategy designed to keep pressure on the United States and South Vietnam indefinitely and in the end to outlast Washington.

Some officials believe such a strategy might include provision for a future cease-fire if Hanoi decided a truce was to its advantage. It also could allow for a negotiated settlement, but the Nixon administration's judgment about that prospect is very pessimistic.

Another option is open to the North Vietnamese, one which currently concerns policy makers here. That is to intensify the war from time to time and increase American casualties in order to stimulate domestic anti-war pressures on Nixon to modify his policy.

Goldwater Backs Agnew's Blasts At War Protesters

HONOLULU (AP) — If Vice President Spiro T. Agnew keeps up his criticism of antiwar demonstrators "he may find himself being boomed for president before it's even his turn," Sen. Barry Goldwater said today.

In his prepared keynote address to the Western States Republican Conference, the unsuccessful 1964 GOP presidential candidate said Agnew's strong attacks on the peace movement leaders express "the sentiment of the vast, overwhelming majority of the American people." Goldwater said the vice president was "accurate and penetrating" in calling the antiwar demonstration leaders "impudent snobs" and should be praised, not vilified.

"The vice president's crime, it seems, was to describe an effete corps of impudent snobs as 'an effete corps of impudent snobs,'" Goldwater said. "When a liberal makes any kind of outlandish charge against his nation or his President, it is taken as a proper exercise in the right of free speech and a legitimate expression of political dissent," he said.

"However, if a conservative or a supporter of the Nixon administration vigorously attacks an activity which is undermining an American military effort, he automatically becomes 'irresponsible' and 'intemperate' in the view of the leftist media," he added.

Goldwater spoke of an Agnew for President boom in the last paragraph of a speech in which he called for Republicans to unite behind President Nixon and the Republican administration's Vietnam policy.

He also had his own characterization of participants in anti-war demonstrations: "Many of them are concerned, warm-hearted but, I believe, misguided Americans who sincerely want an end to the war and bloodshed in Southeast Asia."

"A few, I suspect, are very sick people. Their ailment can be described as 'delerium tremens.'"

He said critics of President Nixon's policy may be pressing their luck.

"I believe they may well discover in weeks to come that there is one thing the American people resent much more than the Vietnam war and that is the disruption of schools and public demonstrations which inconvenience many citizens and play into the hands of those persons whose business it is to kill American fighting men."

Hearing Slated In Murder Case

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Theatist Penick, charged with first-degree murder in the death of his wife, is tentatively scheduled to appear in Hamilton Municipal Court Tuesday.

Penick, 60, is being held without bond in the death of his wife, Helen, 38, whose body was found Monday wrapped in a blanket and covered under a few inches of sand on property in nearby New Miami.

Dr. Garret J. Boone, Butler County coroner, ruled Wednesday that Mrs. Penick died from a bullet wound in the head. New Miami assistant Police Chief Otis Kimbrell said that Penick shot his wife during a domestic quarrel.

A thank you note was read from Evelie Zwyer, Matron of the Medina Home, thanking the Temple and Past Chiefs Club for the washcloths which will be used in the hospital at the home.

Local Physician Re-Elected As AAGP Member

Dr. Jasper M. Hedges, 610 Northridge Road has been re-elected to active membership in the American Academy of General Practice, the national association of family doctors.

Re-election signifies that the physician has successfully completed 150 hours of accredited postgraduate medical study in the last three years. Members become eligible for re-election at the end of the third year following their election to membership. The Academy, the country's second largest national medical association, is the only national medical group that requires members to keep up with medical progress through continuing education.

The Academy, founded in 1947 and headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., has been instrumental in the establishment of a new primary medical specialty in family practice. The new specialty is expected to increase the numbers of family physicians available to serve the public in the future. The Academy's postgraduate education program is the foundation of eligibility for family doctors now in practice who apply for certification in the new specialty.

Nova Scotian Abraham Censer invented the word "kerosene" for his discovery of coal oil.

A thank you note was read from Jill Reese for the planter which she received while in the hospital.

The Past Chancellors banquet will be served by the Sisters on Dec. 10. A joint installation of officers with the Knights will be held in January.

It was announced that a member, Evelyn Bastian, is a surgical patient in Riverside Hospital.

The charter was draped for Sister Fannie Millar and Brother Frank Wharton.

Following the meeting a surprise layette shower was held for Arlene Fortner. She received many gifts from the members present and many from members who were unable to attend.

Games were played with winners being Dorothy Cook, Elaine Winter, Patsy Fortner and Janet McNeal.

Refreshments of cookies, punch and coffee were served to the honored guest, Arlene, Madge Baum, Edith Hudson, Hattie Rife, Ginny Rainey, Shirley Thompson, Mae Borrer, Elaine Winter, Winnie Morrison, Janet McNeal, Pearl Fortner, Jean Schiff, Sonia Seymour, Phyllis Rife, Mary Ann Miller, Candy Miller, Carol Hoolenbach, Shirley Gillian, Jean Weigand, Patsy Fortner, Evelyn Morrison, Mildred Fullen, Dorothy Cook, Helen Kuhlwein, Fern Lutz, Mary Helen Miller, Francine Peters, Marilyn Sabine and the honored guests mother, Mrs. Ruth Hartley.

A homemade pumpkin pie sale will be held in the shopping area of Ashville on Nov. 8, sponsored by the Friendship Circle of the Zion United Methodist Church.

Telephone orders will be taken until 9 a.m. by calling Mrs. Guy Cline, Mrs. Dolph Remy, Mrs. Claude Ward, Mrs. Russell Reid or Mrs. Don Wean. Orders will be delivered anywhere in the immediate Ashville area.

The annual football-cross country banquet will be held at Teays Valley High School November 8. A carry-in dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Those being honored will be members of the varsity, reserve, freshmen football squads, cheerleaders for each team and members of the cross country team, coaches and advisors.

Each and every parent is urged to attend the affair which will be honoring their son or daughter. Each family is asked to bring a well filled basket that includes a meat dish and table service. The table service will be furnished for the honored guests only. Rolls and beverage will be furnished by the Athletic Booster Club which is sponsoring the event.

A dance will follow the dinner and program. Admission to the dance is limited to high school age or over unless younger children have attended the banquet accompanied by their parents.

Eight members and two advisers of the Youth Fellowship of the Zion United Methodist Church attended a Youth Rally at the Emanuel United Methodist Church in Circleville at 2 p.m. Nov. 2.

Election of officers was held and a movie entitled "Your Last Chance" was shown. Refreshments were served.

Hanoi To Boost Infiltration Rate?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key U.S. officials expect North Vietnam to increase its troop infiltration into South Vietnam in the near future after almost six months of decline.

Such action could pose a threat to President Nixon's timetable for withdrawing American ground combat forces from Vietnam, and authorities here are watching developments closely now that the weather is improving along infiltration routes.

According to some reports reaching Washington, the buildup already has started. But the situation is not yet clear as information on North Vietnamese troop flow along such jungle routes as the Ho Chi Minh trail linking North and South Vietnam through Laos is slow to come in.

Based on present prospects, however, some authorities believe Hanoi will not only substantially strengthen its forces in the South by early next year but will launch an offensive to put new pressures for concessions on President Nixon.

If the enemy does not significantly raise infiltration and the level of combat in this period, these experts say, it could mean either Hanoi's ability to escalate the war is limited or that it was sticking to a policy of gradual de-escalation—or both.

Such a development would fit in with Nixon's program of U.S. de-escalation and withdrawal. In any event, the next three to five months evidently will be a critical period for judging enemy action in the light of Nixon's policy speech Monday. He made clear then a key factor in keeping to his secret timetable for troop withdrawals is what the enemy does.

North Vietnamese infiltration into the South has been influenced by seasonal factors.

Monsoon rains normally have slowed troop movement along the trails through Laos from late spring until November.

Then for about six months better weather has allowed massive reinforcements to go South.

Officials say some seasonal increase would be normal now and in coming months, but the question is how much of an effort Hanoi will make and for what purpose.

Nixon reported in his speech that "enemy infiltration over the last three months is less than 20 per cent of what it was over the similar period last year."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers said a month ago that as a result of the infiltration decline—which began last spring—total North Vietnamese strength in South Vietnam had dropped by about 30,000 men.

Gerity Awaits Law Opinion Before Probing Vote Activity

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Police Chief Patrick Gerity is waiting for a Law Department opinion before launching an investigation requested by Mayor Carl B. Stokes into election booth activities of off-duty policemen Tuesday.

At the same time, Gerity issued a statement saying he saw some voting regulation violations but no wrongdoing by police officers during a tour he made of polling places Tuesday.

There have been complaints that police, some of them wearing their guns, deliberately sought to intimidate voters and slow down the vote in Negro wards during the mayoral election.

Stokes, who edged Republican challenger Ralph J. Perk by a 3,753-vote margin, ordered Gerity in a letter Wednesday to investigate the role of the police in the election in the same manner in which we pursue other investigations. We have asked the city Law Department and the Board of Elections to render specific opinions regarding the legality or illegality of the activity of the police in the polling places as challengers and witnesses . . . the question of the legality or illegality of police presence in the booths is resolved by competent authority, this department can proceed with an investigation."

Reportedly as many as 400 off-duty policemen and firemen appeared at East Side polling places Tuesday acting as volunteer challengers on state issue No. 1, the question of giving the vote to 19-year-olds.

Joseph A. Cipollone, county director of elections, said a group known as the Committee of Concerned Citizens for Vote 19 had taken out the necessary papers to get challengers and witnesses into the booths.

Gerity said when he visited polling places with Sidney Specter, and assistant to Mayor Stokes, he saw no policemen engaging in partisan activity.

But he said that he did "observe violations of the voting regulations not involving police personnel which has disturbed me greatly and of which I am registering complaints."

REPEATERS—Mayors of two big cities were re-elected: (right) Carl B. Stokes, only Negro chief executive of a big city, won a squeaker over his Republican foe, Ralph Perk, in Cleveland. Mayor John V. Lindsay (left), loser in the New York City primary, ran as an independent and defeated Democrat Mario Procaccino and Republican State Sen. John Marchi.

Barbara Shutt Loses Latest New Trial Bid

CINCINNATI (AP)—Barbara Shutt, serving a life sentence for first-degree murder, lost a bid Wednesday for a new trial in the death of her foster mother.

Judge William Morrissey of the Hamilton County Common Pleas Court denied a motion for a new trial on grounds including that a confession Miss Shutt, 24, made May 26, the day after Dr. Shutt's death, should not have been entered into evidence in the trial.

Miss Shutt repudiated the confession long before the trial opened.

Morrissey also overruled a supplemental motion for a new trial on grounds that an alternate juror claimed women jurors discussed the case after Morrissey instructed them not

Gale Warnings On U.S. Coasts Foretell Rains

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Gale warnings flew today along the northern reaches of both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, lashed by wind, rain and heavy seas.

The eastern storm area along the Atlantic ran from Cape May, N.J., to Eastport, Maine. Twenty-foot waves were predicted off Nantucket, Mass. Snow was mixed with rain in the Appalachians from central Maryland to central New York State.

The storm concentrated between Tatoosh, Wash., and Newport, Ore., carried scattered rains and snows inland as far as Nevada and Montana.

Between the storms, the weather was fair and dry, and unseasonably warm temperatures were developing despite early morning frost and freeze in South Carolina and Georgia.

1,000th Foreign Aid School Built

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — For the past five years, American children have been working on a foreign aid program of their own—helping build schools in developing nations.

Today the program reached a landmark with announcement that the 1,000th school to be constructed under the School Partnership Program will be in Marinchá, Brazil. The funds were raised by Memorial High School in St. Mary's, Ohio, a city of 7,800 in the western part of the state.

Under the unique program, sponsored by the Peace Corps, more than 700 schools—most with only one room—have been built already in 44 countries with funds raised by 1,300 U.S. schools in 47 states.

The school partnership program began in 1963 when Gene Bradley, then editor of General Electric's public affairs magazine, Forum, was elected president of the Rosendale Elementary School Parent-Teacher Association in Niskayuna, N.Y.

The school was so well equipped that Bradley was warned by his predecessor his biggest problem would be finding useful things to do for it.

Several weeks later, on a business trip to Washington, Bradley asked a friend who had headed a U.S. foreign-aid mission in the Near East what he would do with a thousand dollars.

The friend replied he would build a school.

Bradley returned home, discussed the idea with his PTA board and was given solid backing.

Back in Washington, he sought advice and learned from Sargent Shriver, then head of the Peace Corps, that the idea was suited for the volunteer agency's self-help program.

Selected as the site for the first school was Casablanca, Colombia, a rural village with 80 school-age children and no school.

The children at Rosendale raised $800 at a fair and $350 on other projects which not only bought the materials required to build Casablanca's La Escuela Rosendale but also permitted the adoption of another Colombian village.

The Peace Corps encourages the schools in the two countries to exchange ideas and materials so that the youngsters get to know each other better.

In one project during the summer of 1968, students from Somerville, N.J., went to Peru to help with the building of the school.

The Peace Corps also tries to get host country citizens to visit the U.S. schools that have raised money for communities in their own nation. This year, Ghanians went to Lanesville, Ind., and Ethiopians went to schools in Iowa.

Long Distance Phone Rates To Be Cut $150 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American consumer, beset with rising costs and a shrinking dollar, is getting some welcome relief from old "Ma Bell."

As a result of negotiations with the government, American Telephone and Telegraph will cut its interstate long distance rates by a record $150 million starting next year. AT&T is parent company of the Bell Telephone system.

This reduction, coupled with another $87 million slash scheduled to go into effect Feb. 1, means a total savings in 1970 of $237 million on phone calls across state lines.

In making the rate trimming announcement Wednesday, the Federal Communications Commission said the cuts reflect an increasing AT&T profit coupled with growing long distance phone use.

AT&T said details of the cuts will be made known in the near future. But the $150 million reduction could mean about a 3 per cent drop in the average phone bill for interstate calls.

The FCC said the $150 million reduction follows from a recently completed review of the phone company's financial status, made by the commission.

Bell officials and outside experts.

The $87 million savings offsets an identical increase in rates granted AT&T for users of such large commercial facilities as Telpak and Teletypewriter exchange—TWX.

Although it will cost less for a Maryland resident to call his mother in San Diego, there is no reduction in sight for calls across town. Local and state costs are governed by state agencies, not the FCC, which has jurisdiction over interstate phone rates.

The phone company didn't seem to take the FCC findings too hard. AT&T Vice Chairman John D. DeButts said while the rate cut "is somewhat larger than we believe appropriate at this time, it will not by itself reduce our interstate rate of return below 8 per cent."

The last interstate long distance rate cut was ordered by the FCC in 1967 when the costs were cut a total of $120 million. AT&T said this will be the eighth such drop in the last 10 years.

OLDEST VOTER, perhaps, in the nation in the Nov. 4 election was David W. Donley, 101, shown voting in Columbus, Ohio. He said no, 19 is too young for the voting age, and so did the majority of Ohio voters.

Negro Woman Elected Judge

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Lillian W. Burke, who won election Tuesday as a Municipal Court judge in Cleveland, thinks she is the first Negro woman to serve on the bench in Ohio.

Mrs. Burke defeated Daniel O. Corrigan, Cleveland School board president, by an unofficial total of 84,749 to 78,121.

Like Mayor Carl B. Stokes, she got her margin of victory from white voters on the West Side.

"We were hoping the American political system works—that if you work hard and try to do your best and do your homework that you can win," said Mrs. Burke. She says the efforts of 150 volunteer women workers had a lot to do with getting her elected.

Woman Becomes 'Black' Half Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—Grace Halsell is a slender white woman who changed her skin to black and quit a White House job to live as a Negro for six months in Harlem and Mississippi.

Now, the darkness faded from her body but with more wrinkles around her eyes, she reflects and is shaken.

"I lived as a black for six months," she said Tuesday in an interview, "and all my white friends say 'Oh, you're so brave.'"

"But no one is telling the black woman she's brave and she lives with it all the time."

In a new book, "Soul Sister," she tells of her motivations, of keeping her travels a secret from President Lyndon B. Johnson, her coworkers and her family, and of her determination to record a personal account.

And she describes some of the incidents:

"A white intern in a Harlem hospital refused to treat her swollen and burned foot, telling her, 'You people should bathe more often.'"

"She was arrested for disturbing the peace when she asked permission to use a telephone at a bus station in Indianola, Miss.

She had crossed over from the no longer marked but still "colored" section into the "white" section.

A descendant of slaveholders in Texas, she grew up in Lubbock and worked on newspapers in Fort Worth before traveling to the Far East and to South America to live and to work.

Flag Sales On Increase

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sales of American flags and emblems rose sharply after President Nixon's address on his Vietnam war policy, a flag dealer and a newspaper that sells flags reported Wednesday.

Emil Tamm, a partner in Ad-Sell, which has been dealing in flags, emblems and decals for a decade, said sales began climbing after the Vietnam moratorium activities last month and surged upward after the Nixon speech.

"People want them and they want them fast," Tamm said.

The St. Louis Globe Democrat, which distributes flags as a public service, said 400 were sold Wednesday and prior to that sales had increased to about 200 a day.

Vote To Oppose Rate Increases By Ohio Utilities

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Delegates to the United Auto Workers Community Action Council voted Wednesday night to retain State Rep. George E. Mastics as legal counsel to oppose rate increases being sought by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., East Ohio Gas Co. and the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co.

Council delegates voted to spend an initial $5,000 in the campaign and will seek additional funds from other organizations.

Warren Davis, council director, said "we are going to move the city and township mayors and politicians so they get involved in this fight. Not a mayor or has spoken out against the proposed increases."

Mastics, a long time foe of the utilities, and public interest is not represented in rate hearings before the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

Chief Arrests His Own Son

NORTHVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Police Chief George Scunzio Sr. has arrested his own son in the investigation of vandalism at Northville Central School.

George Jr. and Dennis J. Darby, both 17, were charged Wednesday with first-degree criminal mischief and freed on $1,000 bail.

Chief Scunzio was joined by state police investigators in the inquiry after $150,000 water damage was done Sept. 29 at the school in this small Adirondack foothills town.

Long Distance Phone Rates To Be Cut $150 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American consumer, beset with rising costs and a shrinking dollar, is getting some welcome relief from old "Ma Bell."

As a result of negotiations with the government, American Telephone and Telegraph will cut its interstate long distance rates by a record $150 million starting next year. AT&T is parent company of the Bell Telephone system.

This reduction, coupled with another $87 million scheduled to go into effect Feb. 1, means a total savings in 1970 of $237 million on phone calls across state lines.

In making the rate trimming announcement Wednesday, the Federal Communications Commission said the cuts reflect an increasing AT&T profit coupled with growing long distance phone use.

Reforms Among God's People

DEVOTED KINGS LEAD A NATION TO REDEDICATE ITSELF TO GOD

Scripture—II Kings 18:1-6; 22; 23.

By R. H. RAMSEY

JUDAH outlived Israel by almost a century and a half for many reasons. Her frontier was less exposed to enemies, her soil was less fertile, her people united and of sturdier moral stock, and she had an old, established religious and administrative center.

But the most important contributing factor was that many of her kings were wise and good, and were successful in promoting the people's moral and spiritual prosperity as well as their material prosperity.

Two of these "good" kings—Hezekiah and Josiah—are the objects of today's lesson. Both of these good kings had wicked fathers; and both were succeeded on the throne by idolatrous sons. Yet, because of Hezekiah's faithfulness, God extended his life and reign fifteen years in answer to his prayer, and Judah was delivered from the armies of Assyria. And Josiah's humility and devotion to God were basically responsible for the staying of execution of divine reforms among God's people in order; and priests and Levites reassigned so that even the smallest hamlet or farm had Jehovah-worship available to it.

Josiah succeeded to the throne of Judah at the age of eight, though he accomplished little until he was approximately 26 years old. Like his great-grandfather before him (Hezekiah), Josiah opposed idolatry and destroyed its altars, and suppressed its unlawful and evil practices throughout the country. He centralized worship at Jerusalem, restoring and repairing the Temple there; and in all his activities conducted himself with such enthusiasm and devotion that the people were caught up in his mood and joined him in re-establishing and maintaining Jehovah-worship.

During the renovation of the Temple, Hilkiah, the high priest, discovered the Book of the Law which had been hidden or lost during the desecration of the Temple by Manasseh. Hilkiah delivered it to Shaphan, the scribe, who, after reading it,

GOLDEN TEXT

"Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon."—Isaiah 55:7.

Judgment upon Judah during his lifetime.

Hezekiah began his reign on a happy note that was prophetic of the great changes and spiritual rebirth in store for his people. He called the Levites and priests together and, after reiterating the nation's sins, rebuked them for allowing the nation to become spiritually bankrupt and charged them with the responsibility of rectifying that situation.

First they were to become holy and righteous themselves, then join with the king in the renovation and restoration of the Temple. When this was accomplished Hezekiah held a gigantic national celebration of the Passover.

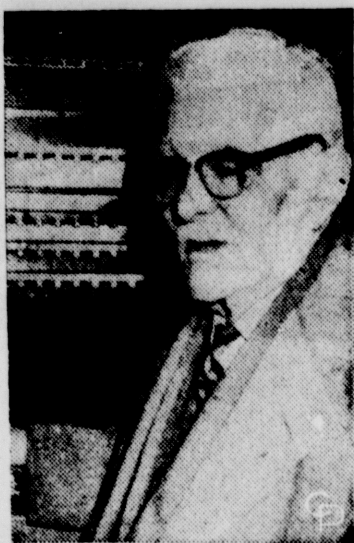

It was a great, week-long celebration, filled with joy and gladness. And when the people returned to their respective cities and villages, a great wave of religious revival swept the nation. Under King Hezekiah, the local altars and idols were destroyed, the system of service in the Temple re-established, tithes, offerings and the regulation of religious feasts were put in order; and priests and Levites reassigned so that even the smallest hamlet or farm had Jehovah-worship available to it.

After consultation with the prophets, Huldah, Josiah gathered the people, elders, priests and prophets together and read the Book of the Law to them. When it was finished, Josiah pledged himself and the people to a new covenant with the Lord: to walk in His ways, to keep His commandments, testimonies and laws with all their hearts and souls; to confirm the words of the covenant as written in the Book of the Law.

A great national reformation followed. Pagan shrines, altars and idols were destroyed, the priests killed or driven out, the wizards and magicians "put away." Then Josiah held a Passover, the first in 200 years, and its influence was so powerful that the people turned from idolatry and committed themselves to the will and purpose of Jehovah.

Mastics, a long time foe of the utilities, and public interest is not represented in rate hearings before the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

Telling no one in her family or at the White House, she acquired black contact lenses, a sun tan and just before quitting her job bottles of pills from the drug store to step up the melanin process and darken her skin to a deep chocolate.

She got a typing position at Harlem Hospital for $35 a week and stayed at a woman's boarding house.

Three months later, after renewing her suntan, she took a bus for Mississippi where in Clarksdale, Indianola and Carthage she odd-jobbed as a domestic.

She says her return to Washington and to the white world was traumatic. She burst into tears when she stepped onto the thick carpet of her apartment.

For two months, she wrote and wrote, in seclusion while her blackness faded. "I don't pretend to be an instant expert on race relations," she said. "I only wrote what happened to me."

Rex Kern

Jim Otis

BUCKEYE BEAUTS—Heading the offense for the Ohio State Buckeyes and heading for the All-American team are quarterback Rex Kern and fullback Jim Otis. Kern, a magician with the ball, has piled up 1,293 yards in total offense and Otis, who has picked up 746 yards rushing, has 10 TDs.

OSU Candidates For All-American Team

By JERRY LISK
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—Top-ranked Ohio State, even deprived of a Rose Bowl chance, should finish the nation's top collegiate football team again this season. But the Buckeyes will get some Midwest argument for All-American honors.

For instance, a growing debate in this precinct involves All-American preference at quarterback between Rex Kern, the magician who manipulates the big bag of Buckeye tricks, and Mike Phipps, Purdue's unerring marksman.

Statistically, senior Phipps has the best of it, ranking No. 2 nationally in total offense compared with 20th for junior Kern. A prime pro prospect and Heisman Trophy candidate, Phipps has surpassed virtually every Purdue record.

On the other hand, Kern received this accolade from Coach Murray Warmath of Minnesota after a 34-7 loss to the Buckeyes during which Kern was disabled for about 20 minutes.

"The Buckeyes are not much without Kern, an entirely different team."

Kern's baffling ball-handling coupled with his vraitlike running and sparing but deadly passing, provide the main reason the unbeaten Bucks (6-0) are tops nationally in scoring with a 44.5-point average; second in total offense with 505.8 yards per game, and No. 4 in rushing with a 310.7 average.

Buckeye pariahs may dispute Warmath's appraisal of a club boasting such other All-American potentials as rover back John Tatum, fullback Jim Otis, middle guard Jim Stillwagon and safety Mike Sensibaugh.

The Associated Press' Mid-

west All-American panel also rates such defensive standouts as Notre Dame's 274-pound Mike McCoy at tackle and 230-pound linebacker Bob Olson; middle guard Hank Hill and safety Tom Curtis of Michigan, and tackle Ron Carl, Michigan State.

The secret ballot is conducted by mail with only regular season games taken into consideration. The ballots are to be mailed between the close of the regular season and the start of the playoffs.

Cuellar, a left-hander with a darting screwball pitch, came to the Orioles from Houston in a trade last winter. He helped pitch Baltimore to the pennant with a 23-11 record and a 2.38 earned run average.

Perry was Minnesota's big winner with a 20-6 record and a 2.78 earned run average. McNally was 20-7 with the Orioles and had a 3.21 earned run mark.

Columbus Ready last week . . . Orrville, a small Class AA school in Wayne County, is unbeaten in the last 19 games.

Cleveland St. Joseph has won 19 in a row and Cleveland Benedictine owns five shutouts in six league games . . . Parma Byzantine Catholic, a Class A power, has beaten seven AA teams and lost to one.

Fairfield fullback Dave Botos' 152 points shattered the Butler County scoring record. He leads the Greater Cincinnati area pointmakers . . . Sandusky's Elmer Lippert earned four touchdowns and 215 rushing yards against Lorain King.

Plymouth is the fourth team Norwalk St. Paul has played that was mentioned in the Class A poll during the season . . . Renard Harmon of Akron Garfield shows more than 2,000 career ground yards.

Mechanicsburg's 9-0-0 season is the best in the Champaign County school's history. Mechanicsburg carries a 49-3-3 record in six coaching years for Nick Petroff . . . Springfield South clipped Lima Senior 44-7 for its eighth in a row and Greater Ohio League title. Coach Lowell Storm has guided eight league winners or co-winners since 1958.

The cheerleader is Dorothea "Dottie" Heitz, 52, and the grandmother of four.

Mrs. Heitz leads a special cheerleader group known as the Granny Girls. The fans call for inspiration from Dottie's mini-skirted troupe when the going gets tough on the field.

Dottie, a 1935 dropout from the University of Montana, showed up at San Fernando in 1967 to take a sociology course.

"I found at Valley State a wonderful school, but such a lack of spirit!" she recalls.

"I got into this spirit thing one day when the cheerleader had laryngitis.

"What will I do?" he asked, "and I told him get somebody else to be his voice.

"Okay, I'll go through the actions and you do the cheering," he said. "So I was his voice and that's how it started."

Granny, a peppy 5-footer, says she gets along nicely with the other coeds, most of them in their late teens or early 20s.

"There is no generation gap with us," she says. "I get invited to all the parties on the campus."

NEW YORK (AP)—For the first time in the history of balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America a major award wound up in a tie today

The Cy Young winner in the National League, announced last week, was Tom Seaver of the New York Mets, who topped both majors with 25 victories. Seaver received 23 of the 24 votes in the National League.

McLain was a unanimous winner of the award in 1968 when he won 31 games. Bob Gibson also scored a 24-0 shutout in the National in 1968.

"I'm surprised," said McLain in San Jose, Calif. "I thought sure they'd go with the pennant winner."

The award, conceived by Ford Frick, former baseball commissioner, originally went to the outstanding pitcher in the major leagues. In 1967 the writers voted to present an award to the outstanding pitcher in each league.

The closest thing to a tie came in 1958 when a 15-man committee gave Bob Turley of the New York Yankees five votes, Warren Spahn of Milwaukee four and Lew Burdette of Milwaukee and Bob Friend of Pittsburgh, each three.

McLain, sharing the laurels, was the first American Leaguer to repeat. Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers won it three times. McLain had a 24-9 won-lost record for the Tigers and a 2.80 earned run average. His nine shutouts led the league.

Jack Lang, secretary-treasurer of the writers association, said there were no tie-breaking provisions. The secret ballot is conducted by mail with only regular season games taken into consideration. The ballots are to be mailed between the close of the regular season and the start of the playoffs.

Cuellar, a left-hander with a darting screwball pitch, came to the Orioles from Houston in a trade last winter. He helped pitch Baltimore to the pennant with a 23-11 record and a 2.38 earned run average.

Perry was Minnesota's big winner with a 20-6 record and a 2.78 earned run average. McNally was 20-7 with the Orioles and had a 3.21 earned run mark.

Columbus Ready last week . . . Orrville, a small Class AA school in Wayne County, is unbeaten in the last 19 games.

Cleveland St. Joseph has won 19 in a row and Cleveland Benedictine owns five shutouts in six league games . . . Parma Byzantine Catholic, a Class A power, has beaten seven AA teams and lost to one.

Fairfield fullback Dave Botos' 152 points shattered the Butler County scoring record. He leads the Greater Cincinnati area pointmakers . . . Sandusky's Elmer Lippert earned four touchdowns and 215 rushing yards against Lorain King.

Plymouth is the fourth team Norwalk St. Paul has played that was mentioned in the Class A poll during the season . . . Renard Harmon of Akron Garfield shows more than 2,000 career ground yards.

Mechanicsburg's 9-0-0 season is the best in the Champaign County school's history. Mechanicsburg carries a 49-3-3 record in six coaching years for Nick Petroff . . . Springfield South clipped Lima Senior 44-7 for its eighth in a row and Greater Ohio League title. Coach Lowell Storm has guided eight league winners or co-winners since 1958.

The cheerleader is Dorothea "Dottie" Heitz, 52, and the grandmother of four.

Mrs. Heitz leads a special cheerleader group known as the Granny Girls. The fans call for inspiration from Dottie's mini-skirted troupe when the going gets tough on the field.

Dottie, a 1935 dropout from the University of Montana, showed up at San Fernando in 1967 to take a sociology course.

"I found at Valley State a wonderful school, but such a lack of spirit!" she recalls.

"I got into this spirit thing one day when the cheerleader had laryngitis.

"What will I do?" he asked, "and I told him get somebody else to be his voice.

"Okay, I'll go through the actions and you do the cheering," he said. "So I was his voice and that's how it started."

Granny, a peppy 5-footer, says she gets along nicely with the other coeds, most of them in their late teens or early 20s.

"There is no generation gap with us," she says. "I get invited to all the parties on the campus."

Dottie, whose return to school had the blessing of her engineer husband, received her bachelor's degree in sociology last June. Now she takes postgraduate courses.

BUCKEYE BEAUTIES—Heading the offense for the Ohio State Buckeyes and heading for the All-American team are quarterback Rex Kern and fullback Jim Otis. Kern, a magician with the ball, has piled up 1,293 yards in total offense and Otis, who has picked up 746 yards rushing, has 10 TDs.

OSU Candidates For All-American Team

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—Top-ranked Ohio State, even deprived of a Rose Bowl chance, should finish the nation's top collegiate football team again this season. But the Buckeyes will get some Midwest argument for All-American honors.

For instance, a growing debate in this precinct involves All-American preference at quarterback between Rex Kern, the magician who manipulates the big bag of Buckeye tricks, and Mike Phipps, Purdue's unerring marksman.

Statistically, senior Phipps has the best of it, ranking No. 2 nationally in total offense compared with 20th for junior Kern. A prime pro prospect and Heisman Trophy candidate, Phipps has surpassed virtually every Purdue passing record.

On the other hand, Kern received this accolade from Coach Murray Warmath of Minnesota after a 34-7 loss to the Buckeyes during which Kern was disabled for about 20 minutes.

Black Hawks Start Perking

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Things are beginning to look up for the Chicago Black Hawks. Not only is Bobby Hull in town and apparently ready to begin playing hockey, but Stan Mikita has notched his first goal of the season.

Mikita's No. 1 started the Hawks off to a 3-1 victory over the New York Rangers Wednesday night, giving Chicago its third victory of the National Hockey League season.

Mikita, a four-time NHL scoring champion, had been scoreless in Chicago's first nine games, managing just four assists. Deprived of Hull's high-powered shots and shackled by Mikita's slump, the Hawks have sunk into the East Division cellar but you can't prove it by the Rangers. Three of the seven points Chicago has managed so far have come against New York.

In other NHL games Wednesday night, Montreal rallied for a 2-2 tie against Minnesota. St. Louis and Boston battled to a 4-4 deadlock. Detroit took Pittsburgh 4-2 and Los Angeles turned back Toronto 6-2.

Tony Esposito starred in goal for Chicago, kicking out 30 New York shots. He lost his shutout in the final minutes when Bob Nevin's shot bounced off a Hawk defenseman and into the net.

Pick Bob Grant Tops In Defense

Until last Sunday the most important thing Bob Grant had done as a pro football player was to pick off two passes in a 1968 rookie game between the Baltimore Colts and the New York Jets.

Grant, a second year man from Wake Forest, got his starting chance against Washington Sunday when Coach Don Shula shook up the defensive unit that had been clobbered by San Francisco the previous week.

Pont Dismisses 10 Negro Dissidents

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Coach John Pont of Indiana University dismissed 10 Negro varsity players Wednesday when they boycotted football drills a second straight day.

The other four Negroes on the varsity squad returned to practice and Pont said they would play Saturday against Iowa.

All 14 black players missed Tuesday's practice.

without Kern, an entirely different team."

Kern's baffling ball-handling coupled with his wraithlike running and sparring but deadly passing, provide the main reason the unbeaten Bucks (6-0) are tops nationally in scoring with a 44.5-point average; second in total offense with 505.8 yards per game, and No. 4 in rushing with a 310.7 average.

Buckeye pariahs may dispute Warmath's appraisal of a club boasting such other All-American potentials as rover back John Tatum, fullback Jim Otis, middle guard Jim Stillwagon and safety Mike Sensibaugh.

The Associated Press' Mid-

west All-American panel also rates such defensive standouts as Notre Dame's 274-pound Mike McCoy at tackle and 230-pound linebacker Bob Olson; middle guard Hank Hill and safety Tom Curtis of Michigan; and tackle Ron Carl, Michigan State.

HONOLULU (AP)—A diet that peeled 20 pounds off Jack Nicklaus' bulky frame did him more mental than physical good, the hard-hitting Ohio strongboy said today.

"There really wasn't anything wrong with me and I wasn't feeling bad physically," Nicklaus said before setting out in the first round of the $125,000 Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament.

"So I can't say that the diet did that much for me from that point."

"But I think the mental discipline was good for me."

"I had the discipline to stick to the diet so I told myself I should be able to translate that discipline to golf."

"That's the reason I went to Sahara with such a good mental attitude."

Nicklaus, now a solid 190 pounds, snapped out of a summer-long slump with a relatively easy victory in the Sahara at Las Vegas, Nev., took a week off and bounced back with still another triumph, a sudden-death playoff victory in last week's Kaiser International at Napa, Calif.

That sudden burst of his old-time brilliance made Big Jack as usual the man to beat for the $25,000 first prize.

Nicklaus, now No. 2 on the all-time money-winning list at just under $1 million, won the San Diego Open last winter, then went into a decline.

"I hadn't had a slump like that since the summer I was 17," he said.

First baseman Bob Bailey of the Montreal Expos came up to the Pittsburgh Pirates chain as a short-stop, starting with Asheville, N. C., in the Sally League.

Zane Trace opens its 1969-70 basketball season Friday, hosting once beaten Laurelville.

With three starters returning from a team that went all the way to the Class A regional basketball tournament finals at Athens last year, the Pioneers promise to be a power on the area hardwoods again.

However, Coach Ron Hall is already faced with problems. Chip Maxwell, the second leading scorer on last year's squad, had contacted mononucleosis and is out for an indefinite period of time.

But Hall still has Jeff Reisinger, a 6-foot 6-inch center, who paced the team in scoring, rebounding and defense last year. Reisinger was the key to the Pioneers' pressure defense that swept so many opponents right off the cage courts last year.

ALSO back is Tom Davis, the 5-foot 6-inch playmaker on the squad. Hall has Joe Park, a 6-foot 4-inch parttime starter last year, back as well as some outstanding prospects from an undefeated reserve team.

Laurelville has two of six starters returning. The Wildcats lost Mike Knece, Dave Berard and Gerald Dibennett by graduation. John Glick, a sophomore center who saw a lot of varsity action last year, has moved out of the district.

Little Tigers Finish Season Undefeated

The Circleville Freshmen football team completed their 1969 season Saturday when they defeated Lancaster Stansberry 30-6 at the junior high field.

Dave Webb raced 40 yards for one touchdown and completed a 50 yard pass play to Dave Truex for another.

Truex added another score as he sped 10 yards to paydirt. Gary Mogan added the fourth score with a 20 yard gallop.

Coach John Glanton singled out Bill Halstenberg for his exceptional pass receiving in the game.

Glanton also praised Dale Bost, Pete Bowers, Greg Dearth, Tom Frericks, Greg Williams, Larry McFarland, Randy Young, Scott Clifton and Bill Halstenberg for their work on the forward wall.

Danny Ongais Has Chance At Wealth With 'Funny Car'

By BUKE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — These days, when baseball slug-

gers and football behemoths make headlines signing $100,000 contracts, it seems strange a man can make that kind of money by driving a "funny car."

But that's just what Danny Ongais has a chance to do this year, says Mickey Thompson, who prepares the Mustangs which he drives—or, more precisely, aims-down the dragstrips.

The 26-year-old Hawaiian is quiet and calm as he sits in the cockpit of the pulsating machine, 40 yards of asphalt stretched out before him and a challenger in another funny car beside him.

About seven seconds later man and machine, seemingly fused into one, blur across the finish line with Ongais and the blue beast almost invariably the winners.

The name funny cars is a holdover from the days when they looked that way, with their rear wheels pushed quite a bit forward for better traction and speed.

Now they tend to look much like the average youngster's car except up close. Then their potential fury becomes obvious; the fat, flat, soft rear tires and the bellowing engine.

Surrounding Danny are 2,270 pounds of Mustang Mach I, quivering to the tune of 1,500 horsepower in a Ford 427 cubic inch, single-overhead cam powerhouse.

"Danny has no equal at the ability to restrain a 1,500-horsepower car at the starting line, then apply full power at precisely the right instant," said Thompson. "He is almost infallible at not red-lighting"—being disqualified for starting too soon.

He is the only funny car driver to break the seven-second barrier for the quarter mile. And he has captured just about every drag racing championship this year, incredible in a sport in which one-hundredth of a second can determine who wins and who loses.

The Ongais-Thompson-Satterlee team go after the $30,000 purse-the richest ever for funny cars-in the third annual Manufacturers' Funny Car championships this weekend at Orange County International Raceway.

The Cincinnati Reds acquired veteran Ray Washburn Wednesday in their search for a consistent starter and sent George Culver to the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Ray gives us depth in a starting role..." Cincinnati General Manager Robert Howsam commented. "He is a hard worker, has fine poise and is an excellent competitor. Ray has been through it all, too, pitching for three pennant winners and twice in World Series competition."

The challenge, posed in a series of questions, came as the conference leaders were discussing recent black athlete unrest, including allegations of discrimination at Brigham Young University and the dismissal of 14 black members of the University of Wyoming football team.

Danny Ongais Has Chance At Wealth With 'Funny Car'

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — These days, when baseball slug-

gers and football behemoths make headlines signing $100,000 contracts, it seems strange a man can make that kind of money by driving a "funny car."

But that's just what Danny Ongais has a chance to do this year, says Mickey Thompson, who prepares the Mustangs which he drives—or, more precisely, aims-down the drag-strips. The 26-year-old Hawaiian is quiet and calm as he sits in the cockpit of the pulsating machine, 40 yards of asphalt stretched out before them and a challenger in another funny car beside them.

About seven seconds later man and machine, seemingly fused into one, blur across the finish line with Ongais and the blue beast almost invariably the winners.

The name funny cars is a holdover from the days when they looked that way, with their rear wheels pushed quite a bit forward for better traction and speed.

Now they tend to look much like the average youngster's car—except up close. Then their potential fury becomes obvious; the fat, flat, soot tires and the howling engine.

Surrounding Danny are 2,270 pounds of Mustang Mach 1, quivering to the tune of 1,500 horsepower in a Ford 427 cubic inch, single-overhead cam powerhouse.

"Danny has no equal at the ability to restrain a 1,500-horsepower car at the starting line, then apply full power at precisely the right instant," said Thompson. "He is almost infallible at not red-lighting"—being disqualified for starting too soon.

He is the only funny car driver to break the seven-second barrier for the quarter mile. And he has captured just about every drag racing championship this year, incredible in a sport in which one-hundredth of a second can determine who wins and who loses.

The Ongais-Thompson-Satterlee team go after the $30,000 purse—the richest ever for funny cars—in the third annual Manufacturers' Funny Car championships this weekend at Orange County International Raceway.

Cincinnati Reds Acquire Washburn
CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds acquired veteran Ray Washburn Wednesday in their search for a consistent starter and sent George Culver to the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Ray gives us depth in a starting role . . ." Cincinnati General Manager Robert Howsam commented. "He is a hard worker, has fine poise and is an excellent competitor. Ray has been through it all, too, pitching for three pennant winners and twice in World Series competition."

SPORTS Highlights

Roger Brown and Mel Daniels got the job done in regulation time for Indiana but a little overtime by Carolina has helped the Pacers to a bigger cushion in the American Basketball Association's Eastern Division race.

Brown tossed in 22 points and Daniels hauled in 20 rebounds as the Pacers rolled to their sixth straight victory, 104-98 over the Nets at New York Wednesday night in the required 48 minutes.

The Indiana club, now 7-1, upped their margin over eastern runnerup Kentucky to 1½ games as the Colts lost to the Carolina Cougars, 121-109 in two overtimes.

There's no place like home . . . except for the Philadelphia 76ers.

Baltimore, an unwelcome visitor from the South, sent the 76ers reeling to their fourth consecutive defeat at the Spectrum—a club record—as the Bullets swept to a 139-130 National Basketball Association victory Wednesday night and had Philadelphia looking forward to its next road game at Detroit Friday.

In the only other NBA games Atlanta stopped Boston 123-121 and Cincinnati trimmed San Diego 133-120.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Divisional play—highlighted by the tight race in the West—plus the addition of two teams combined to draw 3,309,588 more fans to National League ballparks in 1969 than in 1968.

The league office here, in announcing attendance figures Wednesday, also credited the East race with helping buoy attendance. New York, which topped the teams in attendance with 2,175,373, broke into a convincing lead only in the closing weeks.

DENVER (AP) — The Western Athletic Conference Council cut short its meeting Wednesday after 50 black students walked into the session and challenged the league to step into racial controversies at some of its member schools.

The challenge, posed in a series of questions, came as the conference leaders were discussing recent black athlete unrest, including allegations of discrimination at Brigham Young University and the dismissal of 14 black members of this University of Wyoming football team.

Does science justify the risk of sending crews to the moon every four or five months?

Conrad: "I would like to think of it as not a risk. I would like to think that we've worked out a useful transportation system which allows us to explore the moon."

Gordon: "I think it is well worth the risk. Just the simple fact that the moon is there to be explored makes it worthwhile. You might ask was it worth the risk to build an airplane? In those days a lot of people probably said it wasn't worth the risk. But think where we are today because of it."

Bean: "We're going to be sending a lot of people to far-flung planets to explore them, to see what's there, to try to get a better understanding of ourselves, our environment, where the planets originated. And if you believe these things are worthwhile, then making a detailed exploration of the moon is worth whatever risk we have to take to achieve these ends."

Apollo 12 is to be launched Nov. 14 at 11:22 a.m. EST.

Wednesday the space agency successfully tested a color television camera that will permit Conrad and Bean to transmit the first live color TV from the lunar surface.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican strategists say GOP statehouse victories in New Jersey and Virginia have given the party a running start toward grabbing control of the Senate next year.

Further buoying Republican hopes would be President Nixon's active campaigning in the 1970 congressional elections, a likely prospect in view of the credit going his way from Tuesday's results.

Linwood Holton's victory in Virginia, the first Republican to win the statehouse there in more than 80 years, and William T. Cahill's success in New Jersey were seen as personal triumphs for Nixon since he campaigned in both states.

Democrats now control the Senate, 57 votes to 43. A net gain of seven seats next year—when 25 Democratic terms expire—would give Republicans effective control, with the tie-breaking vote of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton, the Republican national chairman, forecast a GOP pickup of eight or nine Senate seats, to put Republicans in charge.

The end of Democratic domination in Virginia, which has a Senate seat up for contest in 1970, also raises the possibility that Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., might switch to the Republican side.

The conservative Byrd, son of the late senator who molded the Democratic machine that ran the state for years, would not discuss that possibility. Nor would he deny it exists.

Byrd, displeased with the course the Democrats have taken, and facing the possibility of a primary election challenge, has repeatedly been rumored considering a Republican future.

Morton said Republicans have an excellent chance to gain 25 House seats, not enough to give them control but a reversal of past trends in mid-term elections.

Adult Farm Program Set At Laurelville

The first meeting of the Laurelville Adult Farmers Class was held Monday night in Vocational Agriculture room of the Laurelville High School.

Plans were made to start the program with a series of five meetings on Farm Electric Wiring and Electric Motors. Other meetings to be conducted later include power timber saws, maintenance of farm tractors and equipment, maintenance of farm shop tools, forestry management, soil conservation practices, pasture improvement, livestock feeding programs and corn production.

These meetings will be held on Monday nights at 7:30 p.m. in vocational agriculture and farm shop rooms and any one interested in the program is welcome to attend. There will be no fees charged for attendance to these meetings.

Plans were also made to conduct a series of 10 meetings on electric arc and oxyacetylene welding for beginners starting on Tuesday, Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m. Pre-registration is requested for this series because the number of enrollees will be limited to around 10 members. Enrollment may be accomplished by calling the Laurelville High School — 332-2021.

A registration fee will be charged for this course to help defray the cost of supplies required to conduct the course. In this program the enrollees should learn to operate the electric arc and oxyacetylene welders and do a satisfactory job of welding on steel and cast iron, brazing, cutting and piercing and using carbon arc torch. Rebuilding of plow shares and planter shoes will be practiced along with hard surfacing of plow shares.

This program will be conducted only if pre-registration indicates a need for the course and if enrollment is large enough another course will be conducted at the conclusion of this one to accommodate those unable to get in the first program.

Colerain Church Plans Revival

The Colerain United Methodist Church has scheduled a Revival beginning today and lasting through Nov. 16.

The services begin 7:30 p.m. nightly. The Rev. James Patterson is the evangelist. Rev. Emmett Frazier is pastor of the church.

Sertoma Prexy Visits Vietnam

Circleville Sertoma Club president, Clark Zwyer, reports that at the request of South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu, Robert Mallicoat, president of Sertoma International, is visiting South Vietnam during the first 10 days of November, along with 24 other selected leaders of the more prestigious voluntary organizations of North America.

Sertoma is extended this opportunity for service because of its growing recognition in the highest councils of leadership, thus providing Sertomans everywhere the challenge of enabling this unfortunate, beleaguered nation to form an expanding voluntary society and greater representative government.

In order to both observe and to make recommendations, President Mallicoat will visit villages and hamlets throughout South Vietnam as well as participate in conferences with President Thieu and his cabinet in Saigon. Sertoma members everywhere take great and justifiable pride in Sertoma's representation and participation in extending this expression of Service to Mankind to the South Vietnamese people.

Pickaway County Easter Seal Chapter Hears Reports

The October meeting of the Pickaway County Easter Seal Society was held at Society headquarters, 108 Reber Ave., with Mrs. Elliott Mason, president, in charge.

It was noted that authorization for three pairs of special orthopedic shoes had been made, medication for two persons and four epilepsy clinic fees and therapy fees supplied. The group also made plans for purchase of a youth wheel chair.

A report from the Speech and Hearing Clinic revealed that the case load at the present time is approximately 60.

Plans were completed for members and delegates who will be attending the Ohio Society's 50th Annual Meeting and the 50th Anniversary National Easter Seal Convention to be held at the Fort Hayes Hotel and the Sheraton-Columbus Hotel in Columbus Nov. 19-22.

The Convention will mark the founding of the first organized society for crippled children, when Rotarians of Elyria, Cleveland and Toledo met in Elyria on April 22, 1919, to form the Ohio Society for Crippled Children. Under the leadership of Edgar F. (Daddy) Allen of Elyria, the movement spread to adjoining states and then throughout the world and today stands as the leading volunteer organization for the rehabilitation of the handicapped of all ages.

About 1500 delegates and visitors from state and metropolitan Easter Seal Units in the 50 states will attend the Golden Anniversary Convention, where leading medical and lay speakers will present their views of the promise of tomorrow in overcoming crippling diseases and accidents.

The Pickaway County Easter Seal Society will be represented at the convention by Mrs. Mason, Mrs. Gerald Niswender, Mrs. Manley Carothers, Mrs. Eugene Simf, Richard E. Plum and Mrs. Montford Kirkwood. Charles Walters, local postmaster, will accompany Plum to the Easter Seal Commemorative stamp ceremony and also the Rotary luncheon which is scheduled for November 20.

Mrs. Mason will be serving on the hospitality committee and Mrs. Kirkwood will be working with the registration committee during the convention.

The Ohio Society's 50th Annual Meeting will be held on Nov. 19 at the Fort Hayes Hotel. Mrs. Siniff and Mrs. Niswender are delegates for this meeting and will be accompanied to the meeting by Mrs. John Kerns.

Guests at the meeting were Mrs. Allen Trax and Mrs. Richard S. Warren. The next meeting is scheduled for Dec. 2.

Does science justify the risk of sending crews to the moon every four or five months?

Conrad: "I would like to think of it as not a risk. I would like to think that we've worked out a useful transportation system which allows us to explore the moon."

Gordon: "I think it is well worth the risk. Just the simple fact that the moon is there to be explored makes it worthwhile. You might ask was it worth the risk to build an airplane? In those days a lot of people probably said it wasn't worth the risk. But think where we are today because of it."

Bean: "We're going to be sending a lot of people to far-flung planets to explore them, to see what's there, to try to get a better understanding of ourselves, our environment, where the planets originated. And if you believe these things are worthwhile, then making a detailed exploration of the moon is worth whatever risk we have to take to achieve these ends."

Apollo 12 is to be launched Nov. 14 at 11:22 a.m. EST. Wednesday the space agency successfully tested a color television camera that will permit Conrad and Bean to transmit the first live color TV from the lunar surface.

Adult Farm Program Set At Laurelville

The first meeting of the Laurelville Adult Farmers Class was held Monday night in Vocational Agriculture room of the Laurelville High School.

Plans were made to start the program with a series of five meetings on Farm Electric Wiring and Electric Motors. Other meetings to be conducted later include power timber saws, maintenance of farm tractors and equipment, maintenance of farm shop tools, forestry management, soil conservation practices, pasture improvement, livestock feeding programs and corn production.

These meetings will be held on Monday nights at 7:30 p.m. in vocational agriculture and farm shop rooms and any one interested in the program is welcome to attend. There will be no fees charged for attendance to these meetings.

Plans were also made to conduct a series of 10 meetings on electric arc and oxyacetylene welding for beginners starting on Tuesday, Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m. Pre-registration is requested for this series because the number of enrollees will be limited to around 10 members. Enrollment may be accomplished by calling the Laurelville High School — 332-2021.

A registration fee will be charged for this course to help defray the cost of supplies required to conduct the course. In this program the enrollees should learn to operate the electric arc and oxyacetylene welders and do a satisfactory job of welding on steel and cast iron, brazing, cutting and piercing and using carbon arc torch. Rebuilding of plow shares and planter shoes will be practiced along with hard surfacing of plow shares.

This program will be conducted only if pre-registration indicates a need for the course and if enrollment is large enough another course will be conducted at the conclusion of this one to accommodate those unable to get in the first program.

GOP Says Statehouse Wins Give Good Start For 1970

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican strategists say GOP statehouse victories in New Jersey and Virginia have given the party a running start toward grabbing control of the Senate next year.

Further buoying Republican hopes would be President Nixon's active campaigning in the 1970 congressional elections, a likely prospect in view of the credit going his way from Tuesday's results.

Linwood Holton's victory in Virginia, the first Republican to win the statehouse there in more than 80 years, and William T. Cahill's success in New Jersey were seen as personal triumphs for Nixon since he campaigned in both states.

Democrats now control the Senate, 57 votes to 43. A net gain of seven seats next year—when 25 Democratic terms expire—would give Republicans effective control, with the tie-breaking vote of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton, the Republican national chairman, forecast a GOP pickup of eight or nine Senate seats, to put Republicans in charge.

The end of Democratic domination in Virginia, which has a Senate seat up for contest in 1970, also raises the possibility that Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr.,

might switch to the Republican side.

The conservative Byrd, son of the late senator who modeled the Democratic machine that ran the state for years, would not discuss that possibility. Nor would he deny it exists.

Byrd, displeased with the course the Democrats have taken, and facing the possibility of a primary election challenge, has repeatedly been rumored considering a Republican future.

Morton said Republicans have an excellent chance to gain 25 House seats, not enough to give them control but a reversal of past trends in mid-term elections.

Sertoma Prexy Visits Vietnam

Circleville Sertoma Club president, Clark Zwyer, reports that at the request of South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu, Robert Mallicoat, president of Sertoma International, is visiting South Vietnam during the first 10 days of November, along with 24 other selected leaders of the more prestigious voluntary organizations of North America.

Sertoma is extended this opportunity for service because of its growing recognition in the highest councils of leadership, thus providing Sertomans everywhere the challenge of enabling this unfortunate, beleaguered nation to form an expanding voluntary society and greater representative government.

In order to both observe and to make recommendations, President Mallicoat will visit villages and hamlets throughout South Vietnam as well as participate in conferences with President Thieu and his cabinet in Saigon. Sertoma members everywhere take great and justifiable pride in Sertoma's representation and participation in extending this expression of Service to Mankind to the South Vietnamese people.
